Dulles Will Report To Nation

Place Protest On Admittance Of Red China

Dulles, Eden Show Disappointment Over Failure Of Talks

LONDON, Feb. 19 (AP)—South Korea and Nationalist China lashed out today at the Big Four decision to admit the Chinese Reds to an Asian peace conference.

But U. S. Secretary of State Dulles immediately laid plans to refute talk that the decision involved "appeasement" of the Reds and a diplomatic victory for Soviet Russia.

Both Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden have admitted deep disappointment over failure of the foreign ministers' meeting to crack the deadlock over Germany and Austria.

Eden, arriving in London from Berlin today, told newsmen "we tried very hard to get the Russians to agree to a settlement. But I am sorry to say that the Russians wouldn't agree."

Some Plan For Agreement

Eden said the decision to hold an Asian conference on Korea and Indochina opened up "some prospects for agreement on the Far East. This, I admit, is a modest achievement but at least it shows that our labors have not been entirely negative in their results."

You Chan Yang, the South Korean ambassador in Washington, attacked the decision to admit Mao Tze-Tung's regime to a conference April 26 in Geneva as the first United States move toward diploatic recognition of Peiping. The ambassador presented his views in person at the State Department.

George Yeh, foreign minister for Nationalist China, said the decision set up a dangerous precedent which violated the principles of the United Nations charter. Yeh said at Taipeh that the United Nations and not the Big Four should sponsor an Asian Peace meeting.

Additional reaction to the Berlin meeting included:

Washington—Dulles will meet with Republican and Democratic congressional leaders Monday, with the House Foreign Affairs Committee Tuesday and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Wednesday. That evening he will make a radio and television report to the nation.

Cautious Hope

Indochina—Vietnamese leaders expressed cautious hope that an Asian peace conference with Red China present might bring peace after more than seven years of war. But Viet Nam leaders wanted assurance that the Red-led Vietminh would not rise up again. The French military talked of delivering the biggest blow against the rebels sometime next year.

Germany—The Western Big Three moved quickly to ease life in divided Germany, in accord with a Big Four decision to see what could be done to improve trade and cultural relations between the East and West republics. The Western Allied commissioners arranged to call next week for low level talks on these subjects with the Russians.

Austrians Protest Failure For Peace

VIENNA, Austria, Feb. 19 (AP)—Approximately 20,000 Austrian workers chanting "Ivan go home" demonstrated here tonight against Soviet refusal to grant Austria a treaty of independence.

Despite icy winds the workers massed in front of Vienna City Hall and heard Austrian Vice Chancellor Adolf Schaerf blame Russia for the failure of the Big Four meeting in Berlin.

Midwest Struck By Dust Storms

KIDNAPPED — Eight-year-old Facundo Bacardi, schoolboy member of Cuba's famed Bacardi rum family, was kidnapped yesterday at Santiago and held for $50,000 ransom. After the family paid the ransom police reported the boy was rescued from the kidnappers.

Visibility Is Zero As Winds Hit Up To 80 Miles Per Hour

[By The Associated Press]

The worst dust storm since the mid 30's whipped the Midwest from Nebraska to the Mexican border Friday with winds up to 80 miles an hour.

The stifling dust cut visibility to zero in some places, closed schools, slowed traffic to a crawl, and piled dust deep in the streets. The high winds uprooted trees, unroofed small buildings and flattened radio towers and television antennas.

Tornado warnings were issued for the area between McAlester, Okla., and Little Rock, Ark.

Swirling snowstorms and rain showers that accompanied the dust at many points were due to become general throughout a wide area by Saturday.

The eerie dust storm was mingled with rain and snow storms for a weird weather pattern throughout the Midwest Friday. In western Nebraska falling snow was turned a light brown by the dust while in the eastern section of the state rains and light snows ranging up to one half inches brought the heaviest moisture of the year from a single storm.

At Garden City, Kan., merchants shoveled piled up silt three inches deep from the sidewalk. Later the sidewalks became quagmires as a heavy rain turned the silt to mud. Stores were closed and employes were put to work covering up merchandise to protect it from the dust.

Winds of hurricane force ripped at 80 miles an hour through western Kansas, smashing windows and trees. A highway near Garden City was blocked by windblown tumbleweeds that piled up to the height of a car.

Street lights were turned on in mid-morning at Guymon in the Oklahoma Panhandle.

A Greyhound bus was stranded with 17 passengers for eight hours near Ratan in 20 degree weather as a blizzard with winds up to 75 miles an hourrwhipped northeastern New Mexico Friday.

Black dust covered most of eastern New Mexico during the day but heavy snows fell at Portales and Clovis.

In the Panhandle of Texas—heart of the old dust bowl in the mid '30s—schools were closed at Stratford. The dust blacked out many cities.

Adenauer Calls For More Unified Western Europe

BONN, Germany, Feb. 19 (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer called tonight for a united front of free Western European nations to "prove to the Soviet Union that it cannot win the cold war."

In his first public comment on the Berlin Big Four conference, the chancellor told a news conference:

"The Soviet Union has shown in Berlin that it intends to maintain its present position in Europe and attempt to eject the United States from the continent.

"There can be only one answer to this: Unification of West Europe. If Russia sees that not only the Big Three powers but the rest of Europe is prepared to merge its strength, then we might hope that Russia would make concessions in a worldwide settlement." Adenauer's declaration came shortly after his government issued a statement blistering Russian opposition to Western proposals for unification of Germany at the Berlin parley.

The 78-year-old chancellor told newsmen that the solid front of the Big Three powers "represented a great success at the Berlin conference."

Adenauer then turned to the threatening storm in France and other European countries over special German rights in the proposed European Defense Community. The Western ministers said at the Berlin conference that a reunited Germany could, if it wished, quit EDC. French opponents of EDC are reported asking why France should surrender sovreignty to this six-nation community while a rearmed Germany would be free to leave when it is reunited.

To this, Adenauer said: "The (West German) Federal Republic has promised, and will adhere to this promise, to do everything in its power to insure that a reunited Germany will not break away from the West. The ties of a reunited Germany to the Western camp will remain."

Six Michigan Reds Given Choice Of Jail Or Russia

DETROIT, Feb. 19 (AP)—Six Michigan Communists, convicted of Smith Act violations, today decided to fight prison sentences ranging to five years rather than live in Russia.

Federal Judge Frank A. Picard, in sentencing the six defendants, extended the offer.

He said:

"Under federal laws I can change this sentence anytime within the next 60 days, and, if any of you should decide to want to go to Russia, I would be glad to do so."

He said "I can arrange it," but did not elaborate.

One of the defendants, Saul Wellman, 48, acting as a spokesman for the six, said Judge Picard's offer "was a play for newspaper headlines."

Wellman, and the other defendants, Nat Ganley, 48; Mrs. Helen Winter, 45; Thomas D. Dennis Jr., 35; Philip Schatz, 39, and William Allan, 46, expressed no emotion as Judge Picard passed sentence.

Ganley, termed "the most dangerous" of the defendants, by Judge Picard, was given a five-year term; Mrs. Winter and Allan, 4 years each; Dennis, 4 years, 6 months; Wellman, 4 years, 8 months; and Schatz, 4 years and 4 months.

In addition, udge Picard fined each of the defendants $10,000—the maximum allowable under the Smith Act.

The defendants were convicted Tuesday of violating the Smith Act by conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the United States government.

All said they will appeal the verdict.

Sen. George Starts Drive To Cut Taxes

Sponsors Bill To Increase Personal Income Exemptions

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Veteran Sen. George (D-Ga) launched a Democratic move in the Senate today to slash individual income taxes by an estimated 4½ billion dollars this year and by 10 billion dollars next year.

The senior Democrat and former chairman of the tax-handling Senate Finance Committee told the Senate, "If we are courageous enough to take this forward-looking step before the economy falls flat on its face, we can be of some service to the country."

Calls For Exemptions

He introduced a bill to raise personal exemptions for each taxpayer and each dependent from the present $600 level to $800 this year and $1,000 next year. That would give low income and large family groups the biggest proportionate tax cuts.

A Democratic leader promptly predicted almost all Senate Democrats and many Republicans would support George's proposal. Several Republicans indicated they would support at least some increase in individual exemptions.

George told the Senate he was "not an alarmist nor a prophet of doom" but he felt his plan would be the proper approach to ward off a serious economic downturn.

All tax bills must originate in the House. But the House Ways and Means Committee has been working on a big tax revision project which is slated to hit the House floor within about two weeks. George's proposal could be attached when the bill reached the Senate.

Proposal Is Beaten

Democrats on the House committee are planning a major floor battle to increase exemptions to $700, for an estimated revenue reduction of 2½ billion dollars.

Their proposal was beaten within the committee on a 15-10 party-line vote.

Office Party Safety Hazard

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—The office party is more than a social problem, it's a traffic menace, the White House conference on highway safety was told today.

The 3,000 delegates, in closing sessions of the three-day meeting, got down to swapping tested approaches to the problems of hot-rodders, tipsy drivers, elderly motorists and walkers and drivers in the "dangerous age"—20 to 25 years.

Tipsy celebrants wheeling home from office parties were found to be a "holiday evil" by Detroit's Traffic Safety Assn., reported Donald Slutz, managing director of the organization.

The association sent out appeals to business firms and individuals calling attention to the hazard and discouraging office cocktailing.

The real cure for drunken driving is jail instead of fines, Slutz said.

The fact that 60 to 70 per cent of drunken drivers get jail sentences in Detroit, has reduced the number of cases by 90 per cent, he reported.

The White House conference divided up into four such give-and-take sessions for the final day. The delegates weighed methods of accomplishing the conference goal of a 40 per cent reduction in traffic accidents across the nation this year, and surveyed methods of organizing public and private agencies in the states, cities, and rural areas.

Reporter Says Six Reds At GE

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 19 (AP)—A former Daily Worker reporter today charged six General Electric employes face-to-face with being Communists, and all refused to say before Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) whether it was true.

But Arthur Owens, one of the six, declared at the public hearing that he would call the ex-newsman "a damnable liar" if he were not appearing before what Owens called a "Fascist committee."

Jean Arsenault Jr., 26, appeared as a surprise witness at the opening of the two-day hearing before McCarthy, sitting as a one-man Senate Investigations subcommittee.

Arsenault said he had been a member of the Communist party from the summer of 1949 to February, 1953, and had been one of a cell of 15 Reds at the General Electric Co.'s sprawling main works at Schenectady.

He said all were then members of Local 301, United Electrical Workers Union (Ind), which claims to represent 20,000 of the 40,000 workers at the main GE works.

GE has said it would suspend employes who refuse to testify before investigating agencies, then fire them after 90 days if they fail to "clear themselves" by "answering fully under oath."

Tornado Strikes Near Texas Town

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 19 (AP)—A tornado struck two miles west of Conroe, Tex., near the Texas coast about 3:30 p.m. (EST) today and two persons were reported injured, Texas State Disaster Relief headquarters said.

The tornado was reported to have struck a tavern on top of a hill. Two houses were said to have been blown down. One of the injured was taken to nearby Houston.

Charges Released Against Warren Said "Shocking"

Tower Down

An 80-foot radio tower fell across a main street yesterday at Lubbock, Tex., blocking traffic and crashing into a car. The tower was blown down by high winds which blanketed the city with dirt, sand and light rain as the midwest and southwest was hit by one of the worst dust storms in 30 years.

GOP Denounces Marxist, Liquor Lobby Accusation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP) — A batch of unevaluated charges against Chief Justice Earl Warren were made public today by a subcommittee headed by Sen. Langer (R-ND) amid an angry storm in which Republican leaders denounced the accusations as "fantastic" and Langer's action as "shocking."

The charges said Warren followed the "Marxist line," appointed dishonest judges when he was governor of California and once was under control of a "liquor lobbyist." One of the charges was mailed to the Langer subcommittee by a man described by Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers as "a fugitive from justice."

Charges Are False

Vice President Nixon called the accusations "completely fantastic and patently false."

Sen. Knowland of California, the Senate Republican leader, denounced the subcommittee procedure by which the charges were spread on the public record as "The most shocking event I have observed in my eight years in the Senate."

The statements against Warren, which came from various sources, were read into the record of a public meeting of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee headed by Langer. The meeting broke up in a row when Sen. Watkins (R-Utah) protested that the charges were "the biggest lot of tommyrot ever brought before a Senate committee."

Knowland broke in at one point during the reading to say "I wouldn't submit a town marshal to this kind of charge."

Nixon put out a statement suggesting that "rather than wasting its time investigating the charges" Langer's subcommittee "could well spend some time investigating those who made them."

Are Public Business

Chairman Langer (R-ND) contended that the derogatory statements about Warren were "the public's business" and added:

"I don't think a chief justice should be treated any differently than any other judge or district attorney or United States Marshall."

Warren, having been appointed when Congress was adjourned, is now serving on the high bench, but his confirmation is pending before Langer's Senate Judiciary subcommittee.

The uproar occurred at a public meeting of this subcommittee which has had the nomination since Jan. 11.

Bribery Deal Scandal Faces Tokyo Cabinet

TOKYO, Saturday, Feb. 20 (AP)—Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida's pro-American government was threatened today by a bribery scandal and there was speculation he may have to give way to Mamoru Shigemitsu who signed Japan's surrender.

The press said secret testimony of a big Tokyo money lender about deals made at two plush geisha restaurants linked some of Yoshida's highest cabinet and party members with large-scale corruption.

"This is a very important document that can topple the Cabinet if I release it," said Shoji Tanaka, chairman of the House of Representatives committee which heard the testimony.

Tanaka is linked with a faction of the dominant Liberal party which has challenged Yoshida's leadership.

The personal integrity of 76-year-old Yoshida never has been questioned but newspapers were speculating openly for the first time that the scandals may prove too much for his administration, now five years old.

Asahi bannered its story "Blood Taxes Squandered on Geisha Quarters," implying misuse of taxes paid by an impoverished country.

If Yoshida should fall, it was believed generally that a conservative coalition would form the next administration, probably led by Shigemitsu, the one-legged wartime foreign minister who signed the surrender aboard the battleship Missouri. He later served a term as a "war criminal." He is not considered anti-American, however.

The new disclosures came from Masamitsu Moriwaki, a multi-million-yen money lender. He reportedly worked for six months on his affidavit, even going so far as to list the names of geisha girls present during the restaurant deals.

Pope Is Reported To Be Ill Again

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 19 (AP) — There still was deep concern tonight for the health of Pope Pius XII.

Vatican sources denied a flurry of rumors earlier today that the 77-year-old pontiff had taken a turn for the worse.

But they said that although there had been no deterioration in condition, his progress toward strength was very slight. Doctors said he still must have much rest and let it be known that a long convalescense lies ahead.

High School Boy Stabbed While Heckling Youth

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 19 (AP)—A 15-year-old high school boy was stabbed in the stomach with a pocket-knife today as he and other youths were changing clothing in the Central High School locker room.

The stabbing victim is Teddy L. Spurlock, a sophomore. Physicians said his wound apparently was not critical.

Phillip L. Humbird, also 15, was taken to police headquarters where he made a statement saying other youths at the school had been picking on him for two weeks.

"Today, one boy was around behind me and some others were teasing me," detectives quoted him as saying. "I was partly dressed and I figured they were going to dunk me into the shower."

Humbird said he reached into his pocket for his knife and struck at the nearest one of his tormentors.

Bricker Says Dulles Turned

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) accused Secretary of State Dulles today of performing "a legal somersault" in his attitude toward changing the Constitution to limit treaty-making powers.

Bricker told the Senate that Dulles was saying last year that international agreements negotiated by the President "can not constitutionally become law of the land".

Since then supporters of Bricker's proposed constitutional change have cited court rulings to show that executive agreements can override state law, Bricker said, and added:

"When Mr. Dulles finally discovered the latent power . . . he opposed any move to surrender it."

The secretary has been opposed to the Bricker amendment since taking over at the State Department. Bricker contends that before the Republican victory in 1952 Dulles indicated he favored some curbs on treaty power.

Although Senate debate resumed today on the Bricker amendment and several substitute proposals, it is expected that there will be no more votes on the issue until Tuesday. Senate sentiment was tested three times earlier in the week, when the GOP leadership succeeded in making fundamental changes in the Bricker amendment.

Returns From Berlin With Asian Terms

Says Plans What U. S. Wanted; Will Speak On Radio-TV

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles returned by plane from the Berlin conference tonight, saying the terms for an Asian peace conference at Geneva are "100 per cent what we have wanted."

Dulles said at the National Airport that the makeup of the conference, which will include representatives of the Red Chinese government, and its site in neutral Switzerland are "precisely what we have always sought."

There have been critical rumblings here that the Big Four agreement in Berlin involved "appeasement" of the Reds. Dulles plans a radio-TV report to the nation next week to explain the American position.

Accompanied By Aides

Accompanied by nine aides, the secretary arrived at the military air terminal in a special Air Force plane which left Berlin yesterday.

Dulles declared that failure of the four foreign ministers to reach an agreement on European problems at Berlin has actually increased the prospects for European unity.

This is so, he said, because the Russians showed during the four weeks of stubborn negotiations that they are "not willing to let go their grip anywhere" and that the Soviet Union would like to extend its captive realm if it could.

In addition to an early report to the President, Dulles has laid out this schedule for next week:

Monday—A 9:30 a.m., EST, meeting at the State Department with Republican and Democratic leaders in Congress, some of whom have criticized the agreements he made with Russia at Berlin.

Closed Door Hearing

Tuesday afternoon—A closed-door report to the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Wednesday morning—The same thing to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Wednesday—A 10 p.m., EST, report to the people via DuMont television and American, Columbia and National Broadcasting system radio, with rebroadcast of his half hour talk by Mutual radio at 10:30 p.m., EST.

State Department Press Officer Jameson Parker, in announcing this schedule, said Dulles would also report to President Eisenhower. But he said the time depends upon when Eisenhower returns from Palm Springs, Calif.

Launch Farm Drive

MOSCOW, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Communist party launched a huge drive today to send tens of thousands of young Soviet workers off to the country. They would cultivate new fields to help give Russia's millions more food and clothing.

8-Year-Old Bacardi Rum Heir Kidnapped, Rescued

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 19 (AP)—Guillermo Rodriguez, the Bacardi family chauffeur who was accused of being an accomplice in the kidnapping today of Facundo Bacardi, 8-year-old Bacardi rum fortune heir, was shot dead tonight by army men who reported he attempted to escape.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 19 (AP)—Eight-year-old Facundo Bacardi, kidnapped scion of the wealthy Cuban rum family, was rescued unharmed tonight and three kidnappers were captured by the Cuban army.

The army announced the rescue and capture in a terse statement after family efforts to pay the demanded $50,000 ransom apparently failed.

The army said the boy was "safe and sound."

He was rescued by soldiers in a suburb of Santiago known as Melgarejo.

An army lieutenant riding in a jeep saw a youngster walking with a man, and on a chance yelled out:

"Facundo! Facundo!"

The boy turned and said, "I am Facundo." The man with him fled but was overtaken by the lieutenant and brought to Santiago.

The child, a member of one of the wealthiest families in the Caribbean area, was taken home and examined by two doctors. They pronounced him in fine shape.

The boy complained only that he was hungry.

The Bacardi chauffeur, Guillermo Rodriguez, from whom the boy was snatched while en route to school this morning, was taken back to army headquarters for questioning tonight.

He had been released earlier to drive around with the $50,000 ransom in efforts to contact the kidnappers. The kidnappers failed to appear, however, the family said.

The Cuban Naval Station at Punta Blanca said the chauffeur had been in the navy at one time but was discharged dishonorably for "gambling, using marijuana and other vices."

The boy, Facundo Bacardi, was seized while en route to a fashionable private school, the Colegio Dolores, in the family station wagon. The family chauffeur returned and reported three men had terrorized him and made off with the boy, leaving a note demanding $50,000 ransom.

The boy's father is Daniel Bacardi, vice president of the Hatuey beer brewery in Santiago. The family also has big refineries and breweries in Havana, Santiago and Santa Clara provinces and other business enterprises in Mexico and Puerto Rico.

One of the defendants, Saul Wellman, 48, acting as a spokesman for the six, said Judge Picard's offer "was a play for newspaper headlines."

Wellman, and the other defendants, Nat Ganley, 48; Mrs. Helen Winter, 45; Thomas D. Dennis Jr., 35; Philip Schatz, 39, and William Allan, 46, expressed no emotion as Judge Picard passed sentence.

Ganley, termed "the most dangerous" of the defendants, by Judge Picard, was given a five-year term; Mrs. Winter and Allan, 4 years each; Dennis, 4 years, 6 months; Wellman, 4 years, 8 months; and Schatz, 4 years and 4 months.

In addition, udge Picard fined each of the defendants $10,000—the maximum allowable under the Smith Act.

The defendants were convicted Tuesday of violating the Smith Act by conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the United States government.

All said they will appeal the verdict.

Sen. George Starts Drive To Cut Taxes

Sponsors Bill To Increase Personal Income Exemptions

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Veteran Sen. George (D-Ga) launched a Democratic move in the Senate today to slash individual income taxes by an estimated 4½ billion dollars this year and by 10 billion dollars next year.

The senior Democrat and former chairman of the tax-handling Senate Finance Committee told the Senate, "If we are courageous enough to take this forward-looking step before the economy falls flat on its face, we can be of some service to the country."

Calls For Exemptions

He introduced a bill to raise personal exemptions for each taxpayer and each dependent from the present $600 level to $800 this year and $1,000 next year. That would give low income and large family groups the biggest proportionate tax cuts.

A Democratic leader promptly predicted almost all Senate Democrats and many Republicans would support George's proposal. Several Republicans indicated they would support at least some increase in individual exemptions.

George told the Senate he was "not an alarmist nor a prophet of doom" but he felt his plan would be the proper approach to ward off a serious economic downturn.

All tax bills must originate in the House. But the House Ways and Means Committee has been working on a big tax revision project which is slated to hit the House floor within about two weeks. George's proposal could be attached when the bill reached the Senate.

Proposal Is Beaten

Democrats on the House committee are planning a major floor battle to increase exemptions to $700, for an estimated revenue reduction of 2½ billion dollars.

Their proposal was beaten within the committee on a 15-10 party-line vote.

Office Party Safety Hazard

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—The office party is more than a social problem, it's a traffic menace, the White House conference on highway safety was told today.

The 3,000 delegates, in closing sessions of the three-day meeting, got down to swapping tested approaches to the problems of hot-rodders, tipsy drivers, elderly motorists and walkers and drivers in the "dangerous age"—20 to 25 years.

Tipsy celebrants wheeling home from office parties were found to be a "holiday evil" by Detroit's Traffic Safety Assn., reported Donald Slutz, managing director of the organization.

The association sent out appeals to business firms and individuals calling attention to the hazard and discouraging office cocktailing.

The real cure for drunken driving is jail instead of fines, Slutz said.

The fact that 60 to 70 per cent of drunken drivers get jail sentences in Detroit, has reduced the number of cases by 90 per cent, he reported.

The White House conference divided up into four such give-and-take sessions for the final day. The delegates weighed methods of accomplishing the conference goal of a 40 per cent reduction in traffic accidents across the nation this year, and surveyed methods of organizing public and private agencies in the states, cities, and rural areas.

Brig. Gen. Hugh P. Harris, chief of staff of the 2nd Army, pinned Bronze Star Medals on Edward M. Gaither of Philadelphia and Charles N. Loutitt of Monongahela, Pa.

Charges Released Against Warren Said "Shocking"

Tower Down

An 80-foot radio tower fell across a main street yesterday at Lubbock, Tex., blocking traffic and crashing into a car. The tower was blown down by high winds which blanketed the city with dirt, sand and light rain as the midwest and southwest was hit by one of the worst dust storms in 30 years.

GOP Denounces Marxist, Liquor Lobby Accusation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP) — A batch of unevaluated charges against Chief Justice Earl Warren were made public today by a subcommittee headed by Sen. Langer (R-ND) amid an angry storm in which Republican leaders denounced the accusations as "fantastic" and Langer's action as "shocking."

The charges said Warren followed the "Marxist line," appointed dishonest judges when he was governor of California and once was under control of a "liquor lobbyist." One of the charges was mailed to the Langer subcommittee by a man described by Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers as "a fugitive from justice."

Charges Are False

Vice President Nixon called the accusations "completely fantastic and patently false."

Sen. Knowland of California, the Senate Republican leader, denounced the subcommittee procedure by which the charges were spread on the public record as "The most shocking event I have observed in my eight years in the Senate."

The statements against Warren, which came from various sources, were read into the record of a public meeting of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee headed by Langer. The meeting broke up in a row when Sen. Watkins (R-Utah) protested that the charges were "the biggest lot of tommyrot ever brought before a Senate committee."

Knowland broke in at one point during the reading to say "I wouldn't submit a town marshal to this kind of charge."

Nixon put out a statement suggesting that "rather than wasting its time investigating the charges" Langer's subcommittee "could well spend some time investigating those who made them."

Are Public Business

Chairman Langer (R-ND) contended that the derogatory statements about Warren were "the public's business" and added:

"I don't think a chief justice should be treated any differently than any other judge or district attorney or United States Marshall."

Warren, having been appointed when Congress was adjourned, is now serving on the high bench, but his confirmation is pending before Langer's Senate Judiciary subcommittee.

The uproar occurred at a public meeting of this subcommittee which has had the nomination since Jan. 11.

Bribery Deal Scandal Faces Tokyo Cabinet

TOKYO, Saturday, Feb. 20 (AP)—Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida's pro-American government was threatened today by a bribery scandal and there was speculation he may have to give way to Mamoru Shigemitsu who signed Japan's surrender.

The press said secret testimony of a big Tokyo money lender about deals made at two plush geisha restaurants linked some of Yoshida's highest cabinet and party members with large-scale corruption.

"This is a very important document that can topple the Cabinet if I release it," said Shoji Tanaka, chairman of the House of Representatives committee which heard the testimony.

Tanaka is linked with a faction of the dominant Liberal party which has challenged Yoshida's leadership.

The personal integrity of 76-year-old Yoshida never has been questioned but newspapers were speculating openly for the first time that the scandals may prove too much for his administration, now five years old.

Asahi bannered its story "Blood Taxes Squandered on Geisha Quarters," implying misuse of taxes paid by an impoverished country.

If Yoshida should fall, it was believed generally that a conservative coalition would form the next administration, probably led by Shigemitsu, the one-legged wartime foreign minister who signed the surrender aboard the battleship Missouri. He later served a term as a "war criminal." He is not considered anti-American, however.

The new disclosures came from Masamitsu Moriwaki, a multi-million-yen money lender. He reportedly worked for six months on his affidavit, even going so far as to list the names of geisha girls present during the restaurant deals.

Pope Is Reported To Be Ill Again

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 19 (AP) — There still was deep concern tonight for the health of Pope Pius XII.

Vatican sources denied a flurry of rumors earlier today that the 77-year-old pontiff had taken a turn for the worse.

But they said that although there had been no deterioration in condition, his progress toward strength was very slight. Doctors said he still must have much rest and let it be known that a long convalescense lies ahead.

Elected To Office

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP)—Mary Emma Allen of Martinsburg, supervisor of elementary music in Berkeley County schools, was elected first vice president of the West Virginia Music Educators Assn. today.

High School Boy Stabbed While Heckling Youth

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 19 (AP)—A 15-year-old high school boy was stabbed in the stomach with a pocket-knife today as he and other youths were changing clothing in the Central High School locker room.

The stabbing victim is Teddy L. Spurlock, a sophomore. Physicians said his wound apparently was not critical.

Phillip L. Humbird, also 15, was taken to police headquarters where he made a statement saying other youths at the school had been picking on him for two weeks.

"Today, one boy was around behind me and some others were teasing me," detectives quoted him as saying. "I was partly dressed and I figured they were going to dunk me into the shower."

Humbird said he reached into his pocket for his knife and struck at the nearest one of his tormentors.

Bricker Says Dulles Turned

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) accused Secretary of State Dulles today of performing "a legal somersault" in his attitude toward changing the Constitution to limit treaty-making powers.

Bricker told the Senate that Dulles was saying last year that international agreements negotiated by the President "can not constitutionally become law of the land".

Since then supporters of Bricker's proposed constitutional change have cited court rulings to show that executive agreements can override state law, Bricker said, and added:

"When Mr. Dulles finally discovered the latent power . . . he opposed any move to surrender it."

The secretary has been opposed to the Bricker amendment since taking over at the State Department. Bricker contends that before the Republican victory in 1952 Dulles indicated he favored some curbs on treaty power.

Although Senate debate resumed today on the Bricker amendment and several substitute proposals, it is expected that there will be no more votes on the issue until Tuesday. Senate sentiment was tested three times earlier in the week, when the GOP leadership succeeded in making fundamental changes in the Bricker amendment.

Marilyn Back With Hubby Joe

TOKYO, Saturday, Feb. 20 (AP)—Marilyn Monroe flew back to Joe Di Maggio last night after four days in Korea entertaining 100,000 military men and got a kiss from her husband, the former New York Yankee slugger.

She appeared to have been overwhelmed at her cheering, whistling audiences by her Korean tour.

Returns From Berlin With Asian Terms

Says Plans What U. S. Wanted; Will Speak On Radio-TV

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles returned by plane from the Berlin conference tonight, saying the terms for an Asian peace conference at Geneva are "100 per cent what we have wanted."

Dulles said at the National Airport that the makeup of the conference, which will include representatives of the Red Chinese government, and its site in neutral Switzerland are "precisely what we have always sought."

There have been critical rumblings here that the Big Four agreement in Berlin involved "appeasement" of the Reds. Dulles plans a radio-TV report to the nation next week to explain the American position.

Accompanied By Aides

Accompanied by nine aides, the secretary arrived at the military air terminal in a special Air Force plane which left Berlin yesterday.

Dulles declared that failure of the four foreign ministers to reach an agreement on European problems at Berlin has actually increased the prospects for European unity.

This is so, he said, because the Russians showed during the four weeks of stubborn negotiations that they are "not willing to let go their grip anywhere" and that the Soviet Union would like to extend its captive realm if it could.

In addition to an early report to the President, Dulles has laid out this schedule for next week:

Monday—A 9:30 a.m., EST, meeting at the State Department with Republican and Democratic leaders in Congress, some of whom have criticized the agreements he made with Russia at Berlin.

Closed Door Hearing

Tuesday afternoon—A closed-door report to the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Wednesday morning—The same thing to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Wednesday—A 10 p.m., EST, report to the people via DuMont television and American, Columbia and National Broadcasting system radio, with rebroadcast of his half hour talk by Mutual radio at 10:30 p.m., EST.

State Department Press Officer Jameson Parker, in announcing this schedule, said Dulles would also report to President Eisenhower. But he said the time depends upon when Eisenhower returns from Palm Springs, Calif.

Works For Byrd

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP)—Francis W. Bush of Frederick, administrative assistant to George P. Mahoney in the 1950 and 1952 election campaigns, announced today he will work for H.C. Byrd's Democratic nomination for governor.

Launch Farm Drive

MOSCOW, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Communist party launched a huge drive today to send tens of thousands of young Soviet workers off to the country. They would cultivate new fields to help give Russia's millions more food and clothing.

8-Year-Old Bacardi Rum Heir Kidnapped, Rescued

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 19 (AP)—Guillermo Rodriguez, the Bacardi family chauffeur who was accused of being an accomplice in the kidnapping today of Facundo Bacardi, 8-year-old Bacardi rum fortune heir, was shot dead tonight by army men who reported he attempted to escape.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Feb. 19 (AP)—Eight-year-old Facundo Bacardi, kidnapped scion of the wealthy Cuban rum family, was rescued unharmed tonight and three kidnappers were captured by the Cuban army.

The army announced the rescue and capture in a terse statement after family efforts to pay the demanded $50,000 ransom apparently failed.

The army said the boy was "safe and sound."

He was rescued by soldiers in a suburb of Santiago known as Melgarejo.

An army lieutenant riding in a jeep saw a youngster walking with a man, and on a chance yelled out:

"Facundo! Facundo!"

The boy turned and said, "I am Facundo." The man with him fled but was overtaken by the lieutenant and brought to Santiago.

The child, a member of one of the wealthiest families in the Caribbean area, was taken home and examined by two doctors. They pronounced him in fine shape.

The boy complained only that he was hungry.

The Bacardi chauffeur, Guillermo Rodriguez, from whom the boy was snatched while en route to school this morning, was taken back to army headquarters for questioning tonight.

He had been released earlier to drive around with the $50,000 ransom in efforts to contact the kidnappers. The kidnappers failed to appear, however, the family said.

The Cuban Naval Station at Punta Blanca said the chauffeur had been in the navy at one time but was discharged dishonorably for "gambling, using marijuana and other vices."

The boy, Facundo Bacardi, was seized while en route to a fashionable private school, the Colegio Dolores, in the family station wagon. The family chauffeur returned and reported three men had terrorized him and made off with the boy, leaving a note demanding $50,000 ransom.

The boy's father is Daniel Bacardi, vice president of the Hatuey beer brewery in Santiago. The family also has big refineries and breweries in Havana, Santiago and Santa Clara provinces and other business enterprises in Mexico and Puerto Rico.

State Senate Delays Vote On Some Touchy Measures

House Passes Bill To Make Public Official Decisions

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 19 (AP)—Trucks have failed to voluntarily stay off the new Baltimore-Washington expressway as promised and should be forced to by law, Del Robinson (D-Balto 4th) said today.

Robinson told the House only the fact that this is a "short" 30-day session kept him from reviving his bill to prohibit trucks from using the road built by Maryland from Baltimore to Jessup. They already are banned from the portion from Jessup to Washington being built by the federal government.

The House passed the bill last year "but it never saw the light of day in the Senate," Robinson recalled. "There is a moral for all of us and the trucking industry" in what has happened since, he said.

"Representatives of the Maryland truck industry stated they were in accord with the spirit of the bill, but preferred not to have mandatory legislation," he related.

"They assured us they would cooperate and would keep trucks off on a voluntary basis. I believe they spoke in good faith and made every effort to keep trucks from utilizing the road.

"However, it is true that an increasing number of trucks are now using it."

The House sent to the governor for his signature a bill ordering local, county and state public bodies to make all final actions out in the open. Six delegates voted against the bill by Sen. Goldstein (D-Calvert).

The bill permits bodies to discuss subjects in secret, but directs them to admit the public to their final actions. There is no penalty provided for bodies which might ignore the legislative mandate.

The House also passed over to the Senate a bill to let municipalities make more of their own laws rather than the General Assembly. The Senate ignored the same bill last year.

The House put off until Monday debate on a proposed change in the tax on capital shares of public utilities. The bill, to go into effect in 1957, would give all counties a share of the taxes, most of which now go only to Baltimore City, Wicomico, Frederick and Garrett counties.

The Senate also backed up for the moment on several touchy measures. It deferred until Monday argument on exempting most boats from the property tax, increasing school aid for Baltimore and most counties, and lowering the voting age to 18.

Judiciary committeemen by a 7-2 vote had favored the boat tax bill by Sen. Phipps (D-Anne Arundel). After the full Senate delayed action, Sen. McLaughlin (R-Washington) said he would recommend eliminating gasoline tax exemptions for any vessels removed from the property levy.

The Judiciary Committee for the second time also had moved against amending the constitution to allow 18-year-olds and up to vote. Decision on its report was held up until Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) gets back Monday. Kimble has been in a Cumberland hospital this week.

Farm Workers Not Deferred

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP) — Director Henry C. Stanwood of state selective service explained today why farm workers have been called up in the draft in recent instances and said there has been widespread misunderstanding about their status.

Class 2-C farm worker deferments are given only when a local draft board determines that the production of a given farm is "necessary to the national health, safety or interest," Col. Stanwood said.

Their deferment is just that and not a flat exemption from military service, he explained.

There have been reports recently of some farmers being drafted, particularly from Kent County.

Col. Stanwood said it s necessary to "rotate young men in all conceivable occupations from civilian life into the Armed Forces" so that the rotation plan for members of the Armed Forces to return to civilian life can be maintained.

"It was clearly the intent of Congress that all young men who are physically fit will serve two years on active duty in the Armed Forces sooner or later," Co. Stanwood said.

He added, "Men are coming out of the armed forces at the rate of approximately a million a year. All employers, including farmers, must make aggressive and continuous efforts to obtain replacements for their draft eligible employes."

Calls Conference On Border Fight

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Feb. 19 (AP) — Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations today called a conference of Israel and Jordan on border troubles. It is to be held in Jerusalem under his chairmanship at a date to be set later.

He did so at Israel's insistence and over Jordan's opposition. Israel first proposed the conference Nov. 12 and repeated the proposal formally in three letters to the secretary general.

Small Baby Dies Of Burns When Clothes Catch Fire

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP)—Five-months-old Nancy Lee Mulcare died at Johns Hopkins Hospital today of burns sustained when her baby carriage, standing about two feet from a kerosene stove, burst into flames.

Third degree burns covered about 20 per cent of her body.

The child was in the apartment of her grandmother, Mrs. Ruth White, yesterday while the grandmother and the baby's mother, Mrs. Ralph Mulcare, were on their back porches hanging up clothes.

Mrs. Mulcare, who lives in the apartment above her mother, called down from her back porch that she smelled smoke.

Mrs. White rushed inside and found the carriage in flames. She wrapped the baby in a blanket to smother the fire and the infant was rushed to the hospital.

The father is a soldier serving in Korea.

Teamsters May Bolt Union

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19 (AP)—Teamsters Union chief Dave Beck today made an implied threat to pull the 1,300,000-member union out of the AFL in a feud with a rival AFL union, the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks.

Beck protested against a petition by the Clerk's union to the National Mediation Board for an election among express company employes. The two unions have tilted for years over which one should represent express company drivers.

Beck said the Teamsters' Executive Board, before concluding a winter meeting here today, called on AFL President George Meany to "use his good offices" to try to settle the controversy.

Failure of the Clerks to give in to Teamster claims, Beck said, "may have a very serious effect on relationships of the AFL." Asked whether this was a threat to quit the AFL, Beck said "I won't add to that."

Other Teamster officials said privately, however, that Beck would face serious opposition within his own unions should he attempt to sever relations with the AFL.

GENOA, Italy, Feb. 19 (AP) — Italy's shipyard deliveries to Russia since 1948—despite glowing leftist press claims—have totalled only two pint-sized vessels and 42 small tugs.

Former POWs Say Schwable Was "Strange"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Three former POWs testified today that Col. Frank H. Schwable was acting strangely about the time he "confessed" that the United States was waging germ warfare in Korea.

In response to a direct question, Pfc. Melvin J. Gaynor of Tell City, Ind., told a Marine court of inquiry that Schwable did not appear to be "in his right mind" at the time.

Gaynor and Cpl. Eugene R. Vavruska of Tindall, S. D., told of riding in a truck with Schwable when they and other prisoners were transferred from one Communist camp to another on Dec. 8, 1952.

Both men said the flying colonel appeared extremely nervous and at one point during the ride he jumped up and cried: "I'm surrounded by oil."

Red guards silenced him, said Gaylor, who now is stationed at Great Lakes, Ill.

On reaching the new camp they were taken into a mud shack to be fed, Vavruska said, and Schwable suddenly started to shadow box.

Another member of the group, Sgt. I.C. Perason O. Porter of League City, Tex., testified that Schwable appeared "pretty badly shaken up" emotionally and sometimes twitched "like a punch drunk prize fighter."

The truck ride came shortly after Schwable, who had been under intense grilling in solitary confinement, made the statement about germ warfare. He did not sign it, however, until the following January, and Vavruska said:

"He didn't sign it of his own will."

The inquiry, being conducted by three Marine generals and a Navy admiral, is to determine whether the 45 year old much-decorated Schwable should be tried by court-martial for submitting to Communist demands that he sign the confession, which he repudiated on being released.

Warn Pedestrians

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Feb. 19 (AP)—Police paraded a hearse through the city's main business section today as a result of the traffic deaths of three pedestrians within three days.

Dr. Allen Freeman Resigns As Health Dept. Consultant

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP) — Dr. Allen Weir Freeman stood before the Maryland Board of Health today, trembling just perceptibly, and closed out finally a half-century of work that made him a world figure in public health.

"The old professor of public health," he has been called, and "Epidemic chaser." But he insisted on "sanitary expert." For almost 50 years he needled fellow doctors with the proposition their job is less than half done if they only wait for sick people to come to them for treatment. Go out and find sickness, he urged. Prevent it. "Prevention is as valuable as cure."

He stood before the board at its monthly meeting.

"I am 73," he said. "I am ill. I can no longer discharge the duties or accept the responsibilities you have a right to expect of me as consultant to the department.

"I must ask you to relieve me."

The board decided it must free him for full attention to the personal problem he faces.

"With sincere regret," it accepted his resignation, and made him "consultant emeritus." A committee was named to frame a formal resolution expressing appreciation for the work he had done since he became consultant in 1946.

He blue-printed and won the General Assembly's acceptance of a sweeping reorganization of the department in 1951. He helped start Maryland's unique program of free care for all those who cannot afford medical treatment.

He is "emeritus" twice over now, for he holds the rank of professor emeritus of public health administration at the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health. He taught there for 25 years before he retired in 1946 and was dean of the school from 1934 to 1937.

He came to Hopkins in 1921 after four years as Ohio's commissioner of health. Before that he had been an epidemiologist with the U.S. Public Health Service, director of rural sanitation and assistant health commissioner of his native Virginia. He is credited about the control of typhoid fever. He once was president of the American Public Health Association and there is a long list of honors behind his name in "Who's Who."

Britons Get Look At Royal Plate

LONDON (AP)—While Queen Elizabeth II is away on a Commonwealth tour, Britons today were given a look at the fabulous royal plate she uses on big state occasions—and some, like a 500-pound, solid silver wine-cooler tank, which she doesn't use.

The plate was taken out of Buckingham Palace, polished up and put on view at the Victoria and Albert useum.

No price can be placed on the plate, which includes many historic items such as a porringer taken from Napoleon at Waterloo.

Ordnance Office Opened In Spain

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Feb. 19 (AP)—The U.S. Army announced today it has opened an ordnance procurement office in Madrid, Spain.

The office will inspect and test defense material being produced in Spain under a $2,721,600 ordnance off-shore procurement contract placed in 1953. It is the 13th such office to be established in Europe.

Speaks For Ban

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP)—Federal Commissioner of Narcotics H.J. Anslinger warned today that if Maryland drops its ban on movies dealing with narcotics a rise in dope traffic "will inevitably follow."

Anslinger made his comments on film censorship in a letter to Sydney R. Traub, chairman of the State Board of Motion Picture Censors.

Buscher Faces Assault Charge

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP) — A Maryland assistant attorney general charged with assault was ordered today to be tried by a jury next Tuesday.

Counsel for Joseph D. Buscher, 44, of Silver Spring, withdrew his waiver of a jury trial. Last Monday Buscher, assistant Maryland attorney general in charge of State Roads Commission affairs, had waived his right to a jury trial.

Asst. U. S. Attorney Leonard Braman had demanded a jury trial and he said the action in the Municipal Court of Appeals would be pressed despite the waiver, to get a ruling on legal points involved.

Judge Andrew J. Howard Jr. in Municipal Court set the trial date for next Tuesday after the defense withdrew the waiver. The trial had been scheduled for today before Judge Howard.

Braman asked a jury trial on ground that to be effective the waiver had to be approved by court and prosecution.

Radium will halve its value in approximately 1,800 years.

Woman Deadlier Than Male Says Scotland Yard Man

LONDON (AP)—A Scotland Yard murder expert says woman is indeed the more deadly of the species.

"Men generally kill quickly and mercifully," Cmdr. C. H. Hatherill, head of the Yard's Criminal Investigation Division, told a meeting of the Royal Empire Society yesterday. He continued:

"When a woman decides to kill someone, she usually uses poison, and just sits for weeks watching her victim suffer terrible agonies before dying, without any compassion or pity at all."

State Senate Delays Vote On Some Touchy Measures

House Passes Bill To Make Public Official Decisions

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 19 (AP)—Trucks have failed to voluntarily stay off the new Baltimore-Washington expressway as promised and should be forced to by law, Del Robinson (D-Balto 4th) said today.

Robinson told the House only the fact that this is a "short" 30-day session kept him from reviving his bill to prohibit trucks from using the road built by Maryland from Baltimore to Jessup. They already are banned from the portion from Jessup to Washington being built by the federal government.

The House passed the bill last year "but it never saw the light of day in the Senate," Robinson recalled. "There is a moral for all of us and the trucking industry" in what has happened since, he said.

"Representatives of the Maryland truck industry stated they were in accord with the spirit of the bill, but preferred not to have mandatory legislation," he related.

"They assured us they would cooperate and would keep trucks off on a voluntary basis. I believe they spoke in good faith and made every effort to keep trucks from utilizing the road.

"However, it is true that an increasing number of trucks are now using it."

The House sent to the governor for his signature a bill ordering local, county and state public bodies to make all final actions out in the open. Six delegates voted against the bill by Sen. Goldstein (D-Calvert).

The bill permits bodies to discuss subjects in secret, but directs them to admit the public to their final actions. There is no penalty provided for bodies which might ignore the legislative mandate.

The House also passed over to the Senate a bill to let municipalities make more of their own laws rather than the General Assembly. The Senate ignored the same bill last year.

The House put off until Monday debate on a proposed change in the tax on capital shares of public utilities. The bill, to go into effect in 1957, would give all counties a share of the taxes, most of which now go only to Baltimore City, Wicomico, Frederick and Garrett counties.

The Senate also backed up for the moment on several touchy measures. It deferred until Monday argument on exempting most boats from the property tax, increasing school aid for Baltimore and most counties, and lowering the voting age to 18.

Judiciary committeemen by a 7-2 vote had favored the boat tax bill by Sen. Phipps (D-Anne Arundel). After the full Senate delayed action, Sen. McLaughlin (R-Washington) said he would recommend eliminating gasoline tax exemptions for any vessels removed from the property levy.

The Judiciary Committee for the second time also had moved against amending the constitution to allow 18-year-olds and up to vote. Decision on its report was held up until Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) gets back Monday. Kimble has been in a Cumberland hospital this week.

Farm Workers Not Deferred

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP) — Director Henry C. Stanwood of state selective service explained today why farm workers have been called up in the draft in recent instances and said there has been widespread misunderstanding about their status.

Class 2-C farm worker deferments are given only when a local draft board determines that the production of a given farm is "necessary to the national health, safety or interest," Col. Stanwood said.

Their deferment is just that and not a flat exemption from military service, he explained.

There have been reports recently of some farmers being drafted, particularly from Kent County.

Col. Stanwood said it s necessary to "rotate young men in all conceivable occupations from civilian life into the Armed Forces" so that the rotation plan for members of the Armed Forces to return to civilian life can be maintained.

"It was clearly the intent of Congress that all young men who are physically fit will serve two years on active duty in the Armed Forces sooner or later," Co. Stanwood said.

He added, "Men are coming out of the armed forces at the rate of approximately a million a year. All employers, including farmers, must make aggressive and continuous efforts to obtain replacements for their draft eligible employes."

Calls Conference On Border Fight

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Feb. 19 (AP) — Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations today called a conference of Israel and Jordan on border troubles. It is to be held in Jerusalem under his chairmanship at a date to be set later.

He did so at Israel's insistence and over Jordan's opposition. Israel first proposed the conference Nov. 12 and repeated the proposal formally in three letters to the secretary general.

Small Baby Dies Of Burns When Clothes Catch Fire

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP)—Five-months-old Nancy Lee Mulcare died at Johns Hopkins Hospital today of burns sustained when her baby carriage, standing about two feet from a kerosene stove, burst into flames.

Third degree burns covered about 20 per cent of her body.

The child was in the apartment of her grandmother, Mrs. Ruth White, yesterday while the grandmother and the baby's mother, Mrs. Ralph Mulcare, were on their back porches hanging up clothes.

Mrs. Mulcare, who lives in the apartment above her mother, called down from her back porch that she smelled smoke.

Mrs. White rushed inside and found the carriage in flames. She wrapped the baby in a blanket to smother the fire and the infant was rushed to the hospital.

The father is a soldier serving in Korea.

Teamsters May Bolt Union

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19 (AP)—Teamsters Union chief Dave Beck today made an implied threat to pull the 1,300,000-member union out of the AFL in a feud with a rival AFL union, the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks.

Beck protested against a petition by the Clerk's union to the National Mediation Board for an election among express company employes. The two unions have tilted for years over which one should represent express company drivers.

Beck said the Teamsters' Executive Board, before concluding a winter meeting here today, called on AFL President George Meany to "use his good offices" to try to settle the controversy.

Failure of the Clerks to give in to Teamster claims, Beck said, "may have a very serious effect on relationships of the AFL." Asked whether this was a threat to quit the AFL, Beck said "I won't add to that."

Other Teamster officials said privately, however, that Beck would face serious opposition within his own unions should he attempt to sever relations with the AFL.

GENOA, Italy, Feb. 19 (AP) — Italy's shipyard deliveries to Russia since 1948—despite glowing leftist press claims—have totalled only two pint-sized vessels and 42 small tugs.

Former POWs Say Schwable Was "Strange"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP)—Three former POWs testified today that Col. Frank H. Schwable was acting strangely about the time he "confessed" that the United States was waging germ warfare in Korea.

In response to a direct question, Pfc. Melvin J. Gaynor of Tell City, Ind., told a Marine court of inquiry that Schwable did not appear to be "in his right mind" at the time.

Gaynor and Cpl. Eugene R. Vavruska of Tindall, S. D., told of riding in a truck with Schwable when they and other prisoners were transferred from one Communist camp to another on Dec. 8, 1952.

Both men said the flying colonel appeared extremely nervous and at one point during the ride he jumped up and cried: "I'm surrounded by oil."

Red guards silenced him, said Gaylor, who now is stationed at Great Lakes, Ill.

On reaching the new camp they were taken into a mud shack to be fed, Vavruska said, and Schwable suddenly started to shadow box.

Another member of the group, Sgt. 1.C. Perason O. Porter of League City, Tex., testified that Schwable appeared "pretty badly shaken up" emotionally and sometimes twitched "like a punch drunk prize fighter."

The truck ride came shortly after Schwable, who had been under intense grilling in solitary confinement, made the statement about germ warfare. He did not sign it, however, until the following January, and Vavruska said:

"He didn't sign it of his own will."

The inquiry, being conducted by three Marine generals and a Navy admiral, is to determine whether the 45 year old much-decorated Schwable should be tried by court-martial for submitting to Communist demands that he sign the confession, which he repudiated on being released.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Feb. 19 (AP)—Police paraded a hearse through the city's main business section today as a result of the traffic deaths of three pedestrians within three days.

Dr. Allen Freeman Resigns As Health Dept. Consultant

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP) — Dr. Allen Weir Freeman stood before the Maryland Board of Health today, trembling just perceptibly, and closed out finally a half-century of work that made him a world figure in public health.

"The old professor of public health," he has been called, and "Epidemic chaser." But he insisted on "sanitary expert." For almost 50 years he needled fellow doctors with the proposition their job is less than half done if they only wait for sick people to come to them for treatment. Go out and find sickness, he urged. Prevent it. "Prevention is as valuable as cure."

He stood before the board at its monthly meeting.

"I am 73," he said. "I am ill. I can no longer discharge the duties or accept the responsibilities you have a right to expect of me as consultant to the department.

"I must ask you to relieve me."

The board decided it must free him for full attention to the personal problem he faces.

"With sincere regret," it accepted his resignation, and made him "consultant emeritus." A committee was named to frame a formal resolution expressing appreciation for the work he had done since he became consultant in 1946.

He blue-printed and won the General Assembly's acceptance of a sweeping reorganization of the department in 1951. He helped start Maryland's unique program of free care for all those who cannot afford medical treatment.

He is "emeritus" twice over now, for he holds the rank of professor emeritus of public health administration at the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health. He taught there for 25 years before he retired in 1946 and was dean of the school from 1934 to 1937.

He came to Hopkins in 1921 after four years as Ohio's commissioner of health. Before that he had been an epidemiologist with the U.S. Public Health Service, director of rural sanitation and assistant health commissioner of his native Virginia. He is credited about the control of typhoid fever. He once was president of the American Public Health Association and there is a long list of honors behind his name in "Who's Who."

Britons Get Look At Royal Plate

LONDON (AP)—While Queen Elizabeth II is away on a Commonwealth tour, Britons today were given a look at the fabulous royal plate she uses on big state occasions—and some, like a 500-pound, solid silver wine-cooler tank, which she doesn't use.

The plate was taken out of Buckingham Palace, polished up and put on view at the Victoria and Albert useum.

No price can be placed on the plate, which includes many historic items such as a porringer taken from Napoleon at Waterloo.

Ordnance Office Opened In Spain

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Feb. 19 (AP)—The U.S. Army announced today it has opened an ordnance procurement office in Madrid, Spain.

The office will inspect and test defense material being produced in Spain under a $2,721,600 ordnance off-shore procurement contract placed in 1953. It is the 13th such office to be established in Europe.

Speaks For Ban

BALTIMORE, Feb. 19 (AP)—Federal Commissioner of Narcotics H.J. Anslinger warned today that if Maryland drops its ban on movies dealing with narcotics a rise in dope traffic "will inevitably follow."

Anslinger made his comments on film censorship in a letter to Sydney R. Traub, chairman of the State Board of Motion Picture Censors.

Buscher Faces Assault Charge

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP) — A Maryland assistant attorney general charged with assault was ordered today to be tried by a jury next Tuesday.

Counsel for Joseph D. Buscher, 44, of Silver Spring, withdrew his waiver of a jury trial. Last Monday Buscher, assistant Maryland attorney general in charge of State Roads Commission affairs, had waived his right to a jury trial.

Asst. U. S. Attorney Leonard Braman had demanded a jury trial and he said the action in the Municipal Court of Appeals would be pressed despite the waiver, to get a ruling on legal points involved.

Judge Andrew J. Howard Jr. in Municipal Court set the trial date for next Tuesday after the defense withdrew the waiver. The trial had been scheduled for today before Judge Howard.

Braman asked a jury trial on ground that to be effective the waiver had to be approved by court and prosecution.

Radium will halve its value in approximately 1,800 years.

Woman Deadlier Than Male Says Scotland Yard Man

LONDON (AP)—A Scotland Yard murder expert says woman is indeed the more deadly of the species.

"Men generally kill quickly and mercifully," Cmdr. C. H. Hatherill, head of the Yard's Criminal Investigation Division, told a meeting of the Royal Empire Society yesterday. He continued:

"When a woman decides to kill someone, she usually uses poison, and just sits for weeks watching her victim suffer terrible agonies before dying, without any compassion or pity at all."

Route 40 Group Asks State To Expedite Work In Area

Route 40 should be developed both from the economic and engineering standpoint to remove the barrier of the Allegheny Mountains that isolates Allegany and Garrett counties from the rest of the state.

This was the crux of the statements made yesterday by several speakers to Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin, Russell McCain, chairman of the State Roads Commission, and the citizens who gathered in the City Hall Auditorium.

The meeting was sponsored by the Route 40 Association in an effort to have National Highway work in Allegany and Garrett counties expedited in the state's 12-year road building program.

Earl E. Manges was chairman of the session. He introduced Anthony Saeli, manager of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce; Francis Kenney, manager of the Cumberland office of the Department of Employment Security; and John Towler, of the Cumberland Hotel Association.

Saeli pointed out the region is rich in history and scenery. Years ago, he said people drove many miles to see the mountains, but today they are detouring to avoid them.

The section is becoming isolated from Maryland, because of the highway across the mountains east of here, he said. Good roads amount to good public relations when tourists first enter a state, he added.

Kenney traced the original development of the National Highway from an animal path to a trail for westbound settlers and later a road on this trail.

Needs First Class Road

Allegany County should demand a first class highway through the Allegheny Mourtains, he declared, to make the section economically strong. If tunnels are not possible, a first class road should be built over the mountains.

Towler asked for the development of Route 40, comparing a good road over the mountains to a "bridge with Baltimore," just as the bay bridge connects the eastern and western shores of the state.

Baltimore would benefit from the increased business from Allegany and Garrett county firms, he added.

Gov. McKeldin stated the State Roads Commission will do all it can to help these two counties. He related how Pritchett, a veteran of 21 years with the SRC, was promoted to chief engineer recently. He related the details of the 12-year program, which is a pay-as-you-go proposition from annual revenues.

He stated that he hoped the General Assembly would not pass the pending bill that would delay the increase in auto registration fees for another year.

Fee Hike Essential

This fee hike, essential in the 12-year-program, was delayed one year by the 1953 General Assembly he added. Any further delay in the program would be a mistake, the governor declared.

He recalled from history that George Washington once bemoaned the "wretched lanes and tracks Maryland calls roads."

He said progress is being made and has been assured that the dual highway from Baltimore to the Monocacy River in Frederick County will be completed by this fall.

He then turned over the meeting to the State Roads Commission officials present, Chairman Russell McCain of the commission, Norman F. Pritchett, chief engineer; Roland Thompson, assistant locations engineer, and G. Bates Chaires, western district SRC engineer.

Pritchett informed the Route 40 Association that $33,230,000 will be spent on 84 miles of Route 40 during the 12-year road program.

He listed the projects to be undertaken each four-year period as follows:

First four years:

Allegany County—1.6 miles from Garrett County line to Frostburg resurfaced and curves modified (already completed); city limits of Cumberland to Route 36, 4.9 miles, widening and resurfacing; survey plans and acquisition of rights of way on the west slope of Polish Mountain and the east slope of Martins Mountain for curve modification and a third lane. Cost $3,825,000.

Garrett County—Relocation and modification on the west slope of Little Savage with a third lane, cost $230,000, with work expected to start by this summer.

Washington County (Sideling Hill Mountain to Hagerstown)—Plans and acquisition of right of way for dual highway from Sideling Hill Mountain to Hancock, 13.6 miles with construction planned for five miles; St. Paul's Church east 5.25 miles; Hagerstown through route, 2.75 miles, survey and plans. Cost $4,112,000.

Second four years:

Allegany County — Partial construction of Cumberland through route; 4.68 miles; twelve miles from Cumberland to Sideling Hill Mountain, widening, relocating and resurfacing. Cost $6,780,000.

Garrett County—Keyser's Ridge to Allegany County line, 16.8 miles, surveys and acquisition of rights of way for modification of curves, resurfacing and third lanes on steep grades. Cost $1,190,000.

Further Program

Washington County—St. Paul's Church to Hancock, additional 5.7 miles resurfaced, construction of one and one half miles of Hagerstown through route. Cost $4,370,000.

Third four years:

Allegany County — Construction of remainder of road, Cumberland to Sideling Hill Mountain; construction of remainder of Cumberland through route; construction of third lane on grades and installation of barrier type lane divider, Frostburg to Winchester Road, 4.6 miles. Cost $7,205,000.

Garrett County—Construction of projects surveyed in second four years. Cost $2,600,000.

Washington County—Completion of Hagerstown through route. Cost $4,333,000.

Children Get Warning On Sailing Of Kites

Local schools have received posters warning children to exercise caution while flying kites and model airplanes. Distributed by the Potomac Edison Company here, the posters point out the dangers of kites and planes coming in contact with electric wires.

Potomac Edison Company Safety Supervisor Raymond Beard stated that there are still many accidents reported each year resulting from careless kite and model plane flying. Fatalities are numerous and severe burns often are suffered when the necessary precautions are not heeded.

According to Beard and the school posters, persons flying kites and planes should make sure they keep away from electric wires. Only dry cotton string should be used; metal should never be used on kites and under no conditions should anyone climb a utility company pole to release kites stuck on them.

Dedication Of Organ Is Planned By Church

Services will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. to dedicate the new organ recently installed at the Bethany Evangelical United Brethren Church, corner of Fourth and Race streets. Rev. C. K. Welch, pastor, will preside.

The Harmonettes of Fort Hill High School, under the direction of Harold Hansen, will present a program of sacred music. Mrs. C. K. Welch is organist and choir director with Mrs. Arthur L. Redhead assistant. Many of the contributions to the organ fund were made as "In Memoriams," and the names will be inscribed on the organ keys.

Solicitations for the organ, which replaces the one installed when the church building was erected, were made by Mrs. A. L. Redhead and Mrs. Chester A. Crabtree.

This fee hike, essential in the 12-year-program, was delayed one year by the 1953 General Assembly he added. Any further delay in the program would be a mistake, the governor declared.

He recalled from history that George Washington once bemoaned the "wretched lanes and tracks Maryland calls roads."

He said progress is being made and has been assured that the dual highway from Baltimore to the Monocacy River in Frederick County will be completed by this fall.

He then turned over the meeting to the State Roads Commission officials present, Chairman Russell McCain of the commission, Norman F. Pritchett, chief engineer; Roland Thompson, assistant locations engineer, and G. Bates Chaires, western district SRC engineer.

Pritchett informed the Route 40 Association that $33,230,000 will be spent on 84 miles of Route 40 during the 12-year road program.

He listed the projects to be undertaken each four-year period as follows:

First four years:

Allegany County—1.6 miles from Garrett County line to Frostburg resurfaced and curves modified (already completed); city limits of Cumberland to Route 36, 4.9 miles, widening and resurfacing; survey plans and acquisition of rights of way on the west slope of Polish Mountain and the east slope of Martins Mountain for curve modification and a third lane. Cost $3,825,000.

Garrett County—Relocation and modification on the west slope of Little Savage with a third lane, cost $230,000, with work expected to start by this summer.

Washington County (Sideling Hill Mountain to Hagerstown)—Plans and acquisition of right of way for dual highway from Sideling Hill Mountain to Hancock, 13.6 miles with construction planned for five miles; St. Paul's Church east 5.25 miles; Hagerstown through route, 2.75 miles, survey and plans. Cost $4,112,000.

Second four years:

Allegany County — Partial construction of Cumberland through route; 4.68 miles; twelve miles from Cumberland to Sideling Hill Mountain, widening, relocating and resurfacing. Cost $6,780,000.

Garrett County—Keyser's Ridge to Allegany County line, 16.8 miles, surveys and acquisition of rights of way for modification of curves, resurfacing and third lanes on steep grades. Cost $1,190,000.

Further Program

Washington County—St. Paul's Church to Hancock, additional 5.7 miles resurfaced, construction of one and one half miles of Hagerstown through route. Cost $4,370,000.

Third four years:

Allegany County — Construction of remainder of road, Cumberland to Sideling Hill Mountain; construction of remainder of Cumberland through route; construction of third lane on grades and installation of barrier type lane divider, Frostburg to Winchester Road, 4.6 miles. Cost $7,205,000.

Garrett County—Construction of projects surveyed in second four years. Cost $2,600,000.

Washington County—Completion of Hagerstown through route. Cost $4,333,000.

Children Get Warning On Sailing Of Kites

Local schools have received posters warning children to exercise caution while flying kites and model airplanes. Distributed by the Potomac Edison Company here, the posters point out the dangers of kites and planes coming in contact with electric wires.

Potomac Edison Company Safety Supervisor Raymond Beard stated that there are still many accidents reported each year resulting from careless kite and model plane flying. Fatalities are numerous and severe burns often are suffered when the necessary precautions are not heeded.

According to Beard and the school posters, persons flying kites and planes should make sure they keep away from electric wires. Only dry cotton string should be used; metal should never be used on kites and under no conditions should anyone climb a utility company pole to release kites stuck on them.

Dedication Of Organ Is Planned By Church

Services will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. to dedicate the new organ recently installed at the Bethany Evangelical United Brethren Church, corner of Fourth and Race streets. Rev. C. K. Welch, pastor, will preside.

The Harmonettes of Fort Hill High School, under the direction of Harold Hansen, will present a program of sacred music. Mrs. C. K. Welch is organist and choir director with Mrs. Arthur L. Redhead assistant. Many of the contributions to the organ fund were made as "In Memoriams," and the names will be inscribed on the organ keys.

Solicitations for the organ, which replaces the one installed when the church building was erected, were made by Mrs. A. L. Redhead and Mrs. Chester A. Crabtree.

Government Aid To Health Plans

The Eisenhower health program, now awaiting action by Congress, is based on a new conception of the part the federal government should play in making better medical care available to more people at lower cost. The Eisenhower plan bears small resemblance to the Truman plan for compulsory health insurance, although designed to bring many of the same results.

The compulsory health insurance proposal remained before Congress for more than 10 years without action. It contemplated establishment of elaborate federal machinery to administer the plan and a special payroll tax to finance it. Cost of the plan was estimated at $9 billion a year. The Eisenhower plan calls for relatively small amounts of federal money, much of which would be returned to the Treasury in later years. For this among other reasons, it is believed to have a considerably better chance of adoption by Congress.

The central feature of the new plan is the President's proposal for "limited federal reinsurance" of special risks of the private and nonprofit health insurance plans already operating in many parts of the country. The purpose would be to encourage the voluntary prepayment plans to offer broader protection to more families, particularly against the costs of illnesses which require prolonged and expensive treatment.

The administration reinsurance bill has not yet been introduced in Congress and there has been no advance explanation of just what it will contain. However, it is expected to follow the general lines of a bill by Chairman Wolverton (R., N. J.) of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee on which extensive hearings have already been held. The Wolverton bill was first offered in 1951 but attracted little attention until the reinsurance principle was put forward by President Eisenhower.

In its present form, the Wolverton bill would set up a Federal Health Reinsurance Corporation, modeled on the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation which guarantees private bank deposits up to $10,000. Group health plans which admitted low-income subscribers at reduced rates, and which offered benefits spelled out in the bill, would be eligible for the reinsurance protection. They would be charged two per cent of their income from subscribers and would be guaranteed up to two-thirds of each claim in excess of $1,000 paid to any subscriber during any period of 12 consecutive months.

President Eisenhower said his reinsurance plan could be launched with capital of $25 million. The Wolverton bill would require purchase by the Treasury of $50 million of reinsurance corporation stock and would establish two reinsurance funds—one to underwrite medical care plans and the other to underwrite hospitalization insurance.

In addition to reinsurance for private health plans, the President recommends more federal aid for construction of various facilities for examination, treatment and convalescent care of the sick—facilities which would be needed to establish new health care plans offering more comprehensive benefits.

The American Medical Association characterized the health program of the Truman administration as "socialized medicine" and conducted a million dollar campaign against it. President Eisenhower said in his State of the Union message that he was "flatly opposed to the socialization of medicine" and believed "the great need for hospital and medical services can best be met by the initiative of private plans." These statements were welcomed by the AMA, but it has not yet taken a position on the reinsurance proposal. The administration is now trying to draft its bill in a form that will command the support of the whole medical profession.

Indians As Citizens

Tired of its long trusteeship over the Indians, the federal government is planning to get rid of it as rapidly as possible consistent with the ability of particular tribes to govern themselves, with the duties and privileges of citizens.

Concurrent Resolution 108 at the last session of Congress made it mandatory on the part of the secretary of the interior to have bills prepared by January 1 of this year for introduction freeing tribes of federal control in nine areas, including New York State.

All are now before congress as administration measures, but the Six Nations of New York may prove obdurate. They have a treaty going back to Washington's day, whereby their sovereignty shall always be observed by annual payments in "cloathing."

But as the annual payment in cloth is only $4,500 and the Indians in New York, numbering 10,600, get only $2,700 worth of it, the rest going to the Osages, who moved to Wisconsin, at prevailing prices they are not getting "cloathing" but less than a yard apiece of gingham, cotton cloth or sheeting.

Despite the shrinkage in amount since the days cotton cloth sold for two cents a yard, the Indians regard this as a token of their sovereignty. If the New York state bill passes, they do not have to accept any changed status, though a lump sum will be offered in compensation.

These Indian bills will be considered for a month by the Joint Committee on Indian Affairs, and before they are reported out there will be much political wrangling. But there will be a beginning toward making citizens, instead of wards of the nation, of those whose ancestors were here centuries before European settlers touched the Atlantic coast.

Occupational Hazards

If you are one of the trustful souls who put their faith in weather forecasts, you do so at your own risk. You cannot sue the Weather Bureau if its prediction goes sour, says the United States Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

The weather man merely interprets the weather; he doesn't guarantee it. His prognostications are based on trends and probabilities. He is as disappointed as anybody when his judgment proves wrong.

He wants to be helpful. He tries to discover whether tomorrow will be suitable for a picnic, a ski party or a drive. But whether he is making a long-range forecast or only scouting the weekend, he is dependent upon natural phenomena whose vagaries are sometimes past finding out.

He does the best he can with what he has to work on. If you don't like his work, you always have an alternative. You can fall back upon the pains in Aunt Sarah's pet corn, or the twinges in Uncle Silas' rheumatic knee.

How To Keep Well

The Child With Cerebral Palsy

Cerebral palsy leads to impairment of the neuro-muscular system and the victim is unable to control the movements of various muscles throughout the body. In the past, we had little to offer these youngsters but nowadays many are being rehabilitated. Hence we see more and more cerebral palsy sufferers on the street and in stores and offices.

The cause is not known, but in the majority the brain has been damaged to a varying degree by hemorrhage. In some places, bleeding takes place as a result of injury at birth; in others, the Rh factor plays a role. Occasionally the obstetrician is held responsible but statistics show that the incidence of the disorder is just as high in those born under adverse circumstances or with the help of a midwife in an isolated community as it is in the finest hospitals in the land. No one is to blame, and the sooner the family realizes this fact the better. Divorces have been traced to the belief that the condition represents a family trait. Now and then the mother develops a feeling of guilt, thinking she is at fault. For this reason, she overprotects the youngster which in turn alters his personality and emotional development.

The abnormality manifests itself in varying ways. The spastic type is incapacitated by muscular stiffness; if the child tries to move the arms or legs, the tendons contract and prevent normal performance of the intended motion. In consequence, the youngster has difficulty in eating, writing, and walking. When athetosis exists, the affliction is more noticeable because muscular control is impaired, modified, or lost completely. The extremities are in constant motion and flail about in pitiable fashion. Facial grimaces are common. Since the movements cannot be controled, it takes great courage for these boys and girls to venture out of doors. In the ataxic form, balance and the sense of direction are disturbed. When the victim reaches for an object, it is missed by two or three inches, and on bending over, he falls. But when the child is quiet, no one would know about his affliction.

Loss of muscular control does not necessarily mean that the mentality is affected. Studies show that one-half have normal or superior intelligence whereas one-third have an I.Q. below 70 and are uneducable. Many appear unintelligent because their speech, hearing, or sight is defective; 75 per cent have problems along this line. But three-fourths can be taught to speak with expert training.

Every child with cerebral palsy ought to be given the benefit of a thorough medical screening and diagnostic classification to determine how much can be expected from treatment. When this evaluation is made by a good authority, either in his office or at a cerebral palsy clinic, there is no need to go elsewhere for advice.

ASTHMATICS AND VACCINES

J. U. writes: Can a person with asthma take flu "shots?"

REPLY

This depends upon whether the asthmatic is allergic to egg, with which the flu vaccine is prepared.

HERNIA AND PAIN

V. A. writes: When a rupture first occurs, does the victim feel pain?

REPLY

Some do but others cannot recall the slightest distress prior to the appearance of the hernia.

HEART DEFECTS

Mrs. M. writes: Would you tell me the implications and prognosis of congenital heart defects?

REPLY

You neglected to mention the nature of the congenital lesion. Some defects of this type are so serious the child barely survives birth. Other abnormalities are so slight, the efficiency of the heart is unaffected and the individual has a normal life expectancy. Recent success with surgery shows that certain defects are amenable to treatment which in turn changes the outlook from poor to good.

WONDER DRUGS

L. J. writes: Are the miracle drugs producing any miracles in bronchiectasis?

REPLY

No, but they offer temporary relief for weeks or months until a fresh cold develops and symptoms recur.

STAY OFF KNEES

V. W. writes: Will housemaid's knee disappear with rest?

REPLY

Yes, showing that rest is a good remedy.

DIETARY ANGLE

E. L. writes: Do gallstones make diabetes worse?

REPLY

Not unless the stones interfere with the diabetic diet.

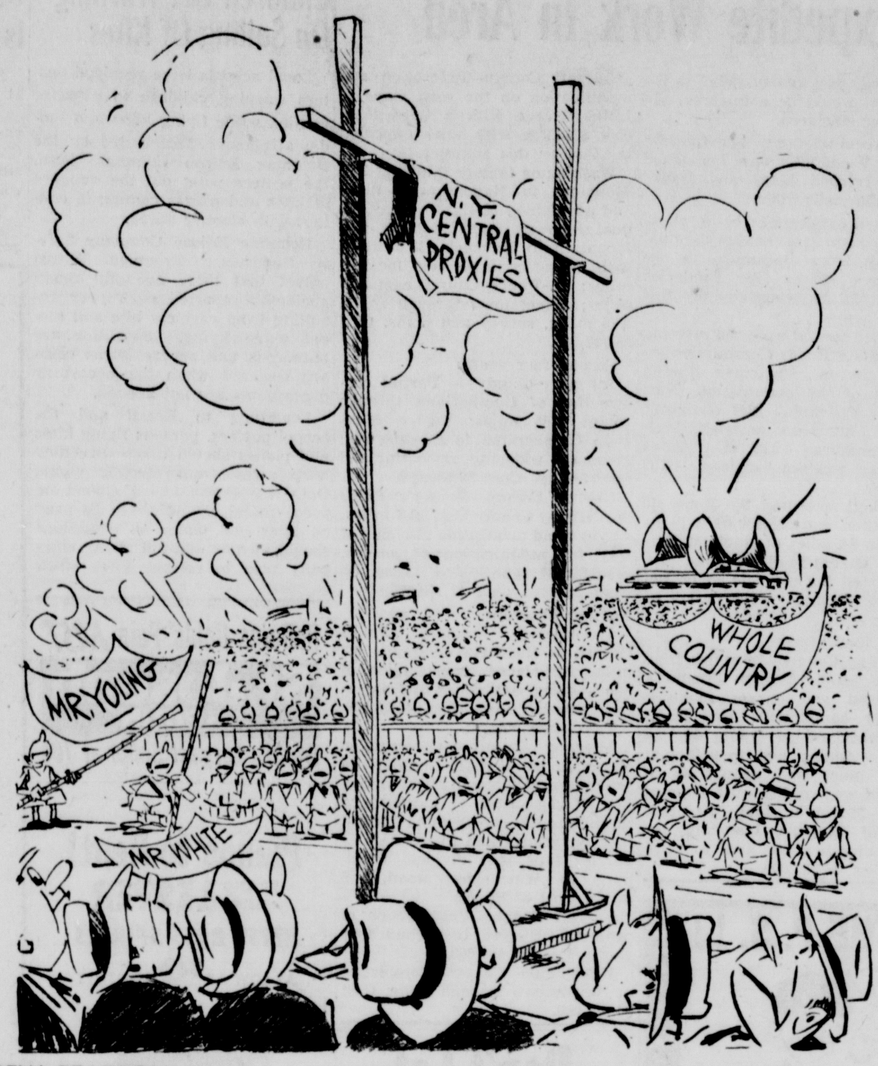

LOW BLOOD PRESSURE

H. N. writes: Will donating blood make low blood pressure lower?

REPLY

Donating blood may lower tension in high blood pressure but has little or no effect upon low blood pressure.

Young Outlines Plans For New York Central; Would Put Woman On Board Of Directors; Republican Margin In Congress Reaches Vanishing Point

WASHINGTON — I talked at length the other day with Robert R. Young, the bouncing little tycoon from Texas who has taken on the second biggest railroad in the U.S.A. and the biggest big-business battle the nation has seen in this century. Among other things, I asked him what he would do if he should lose his stockholders' fight to acquire the New York Central on May 26.

"There will be other May 26ths," Young replied, "and I am only 57 years old. I have eight years left before I reach the New York Central's retirement age of 65. I'm going to keep on fighting."

I had not realized before that Young was only 57. I discovered, as we talked, that he had made a fortune before he got to be 35, retired from business and then went back into business again.

"Retirement was too humdrum," he explained. "I got tired doing nothing."

Born on a Texas cattle ranch which his father managed, he had gone to work during World War I for the Du Ponts, became assistant to John J. Raskob, learned the game of finance from the inside, and became one of the early sparkplugs inside Gerenal Motors.

"Why did you go into the railroad business after you decided to go back to work again?" I asked.

"Because it was the most run-down business in the country," he explained. "You have the greatest opportunity in any business that is backward, and the railroad business has been held back for years. If the automobile business had had the same lack of imagination as the railroad business, it wouldn't be anywhere today either."

Train X

When I asked Mr. Young what he intended to do for the New York Central that hadn't been done before, he replied that one of the chief improvements he would install would be roller bearings.

"Can you imagine an industry with more friction than any other not using roller bearings?" he exclaimed. "Their use on the railroad would save millions of dollars, yet there's been a conspiracy to ban roller bearings."

Young went on to tell about Train X, the model streamliner he had built, patterned after a Spanish train, lighter in construction, lower on the rails and costing one-third less to build than the modern passenger car.

"I built it for use on the Chesapeake and Ohio," he explained, "hoping it would set an example to other roads and that they would follow suit. However, since the C. and O. has to link up with other lines we haven't been able to use it yet, because we can't hook up to their junk.

"One trouble with the railroad business," Young continued, "is refusal to change. The present-day freight car, for instance, got its height from the old plantation wagon drawn by a team of mules that used to load cotton bales into freight cars. Freight cars were built a convenient height for those old plantation wagons and have been kept at that height ever since."

Among various plans Young has for the New York Central is to put a woman on its board of directors, put motion pictures on overnight passenger trains, modernize equipment, and let railroad personnel buy stock in the road so they become its owners as well as its operators.

A serious illness in the House of Representatives, plus the conviction of Congressman Ernest Bramblett of California, has reduced the Republican working majority in the House of Representatives to only one vote.

This leaves the Republicans with a minus-one-vote margin in the Senate, and a plus-one margin in the House.

Actually Congressman Bramblett will continue to hold his seat in Congress during his appeal which will take about 90 days, and which will be strung out as long as possible in order to keep his vote in the House of Representatives.

Meanwhile the last GOP congressman to reduce the margin is Alvin Weichel of Sanducky, Ohio, who has been in Bethesda Naval Hospital suffering from a nervous breakdown. Weichel has had diabetes for some time, and friends say he neglected all care of himself; so that the suffering has caused a mental lapse. Doctors have advised that he will not be able to return to Congress, and there are no plans for his re-election.

Congressman Thor Tollefson of Tacoma, Wash., will take Weichel's place as chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

This will be the third committee whose chairman the Republican leadership will by-pass or plans to by-pass because of incompetence, incapacity, or recalcitrance. The other two are Clare Hoffman of Michigan, chairman of the Government Operations Committee, who has become so crusty and difficult that his committee voted 22 to 1 to by-pass him.

The other is 78-year-old Congressman Dan Reed of New York, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. Reed is still going strong as chairman of his powerful tax-writing committee, but Eisenhower leaders have found Reed so uncooperative that they plan to use the Senate Finance Committee to rewrite his tax bill. There isn't any use arguing with Reed, they figure. So they'll not waste breath until the bill gets over to the Senate.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Wages And Goods

It is not always possible to equate wages absolutely because both the standard and cost of living are important factors in any study. Nevertheless, when the import of goods into the United States is considered, the cost of producing such commodities must be considered in relationship to similar costs in the United States. In this country, wages and taxes are the principal cost of both production and distribution.

According to the American Tariff League, whose statistics are generally reliable, about as reliable as figures can be in this era of propaganda when even governments discolor and distort what they give out, wages currently vary as follows (hourly rate in United States dollars):

United States	$1.78
Canada	1.38
Sweden	.75
Belgium	.48
United Kingdom	.47
France	.46
Germany (West?)	.44
Italy	.37
Japan	.19

These figures must be approximate because of differing exchange values and differing methods of reporting, but they give a fair picture.

The wage gap is enormous and must affect the cost of production and the end price. If to these wage figures were added the cost of taxes, bespoken and hidden, it would be clear that in certain commodities even more efficient production would not close the gap between imported and domestically manufactured commodities. The American-made article will have to leave the market before the onslaught of imports.

Two schools of thought accept this condition as satisfactory:

1. The laissez-faire capitalists who hold that all barriers to trade are worse than the corrections for unsatisfactory conditions. Their view is that if the products of another country can defeat ours in our marketplace, the fault lies with our management, which is not alert enough to beat off competition. There are also those who believe that despite the mechanization of industry to a point approaching the automatic, American management has a superior know-how which can meet competition from abroad. They point to the automobile industry as an example.

2. The internationalists hold to the view that unless we make it possible for our allies and other friendly nations to make money in our dollar market, they will forever be dependent upon our subsidies, which cost us more and produce a condition which does us less good than free commerce. They favor a lower tariff or even free trade.

Against these two arguments is the fact that certain industries in the United States, particularly the electrical equipment industry, are already showing signs of suffering from import competition from low-wage countries. This raises the social problem of unemployment for which in this country, during the past two decades, there seemed to be no solution but war.

The argument as to whether the rise in unemployment represents a recession or a depression is academic. For partisan political purposes, one may argue at great length as to the difference between a recession or a depression, just as 15 years ago, propagandistic economists invented the word reflation to confuse us. Fortunately that word is now forgotten. The point is that when Americans are out of work, they get mad. No matter what such unemployment is called, it raises social issues which can only be met on a political level. Unemployment is the most ugly social disease of our society.

The Randall Report added too little information on this subject to be worthy of notice. It seems to have been wasted effort that may have to be done over again, as accurate data, now unavailable, is essential for reaching correct decisions.

Here And Now

Perspective

Nature has a little gimmick by which days, months and years lose their identity and flow together in one stream of consciousness.

The barriers of past, present and future are swept away, and, with all fences down, one is free to roam his universe without let or hindrance, at will.

Then one can shuttle back and forth in all directions in time and space with equal facility, like a hummingbird sipping the nectar from each flower it lights upon.

Some fragrance, some echo of a lost chord, someone's death, may trigger a chain of reveries or longings that lie deep in the hearts of most of us.

Have you ever listened in on a group of oldsters swapping their cock-and-bull stories? You wondered why some of their adventures did not appear in yesterday's NEWS, they were so thrilling—until you learned that they happened 60-odd years ago and were only being dusted off for the occasion, with no regard for historical perspective.

Time Plays Tricks

Henry Ward Beecher was out walking one day, when his dog saw a woodchuck dart into a hole in the fence. Ever after then when they passed that way, the dog would bark furiously at the hole through which the woodchuck had long since gone elsewhere. Another lack of historical perspective!

Time can play strange tricks on one. Try to imagine in your mind's eye the past and the future. Which can you see?

There is only one possible answer—you can see the past, it is before you. The future which you cannot see is therefore behind you. Right?

That's what the Quechuas of Bolivia, South America, say. They "have something." Our interpretation of past and future is based on movement. Theirs is based on perspective. One is as valid as the other.

It is said that in heaven the oldest angels are the youngest. Here, young or old, the angels either marry or remain single. In either case you may ask their age (sic).

It has been said that foresight is better than hindsight. The reverse is also true. It's a paradise that won't kick both ways.

A panhandler asks you for the loan of a ten-spot which he promises to repay as soon as convenient. "Remember," said he, that "a thousand years are as but a single day with God."

You blandly reply, "Because you know your Bible so well, I'll lend you the $10 dollars—in a minute." You may be "near."

Two people may live in the same neighborhood, and be as far apart as the poles.

Which Is Right?

Or, "two souls with but a single thought, two hearts that beat as one" may be seas apart.

If you are driving, which is the right side of the road? It depends on which direction you are going. You don't mind giving a woman driver one-half of the road, if you know which half she wants.

It's a long way to Tipperary, but if your heart is right there, distances are obliterated. It has been that way since "Adam delved and Eve spun."

The philoprogenitive instinct knows no bounds of race or clime.

The population of Ireland is not populating as it should. The marital situation is not hopeful, not because of any aversion to the connubial state, but because the dangers rather than the joys and blessedness of marriage, have been majored upon.

Statistically, Ireland has the lowest marriage rate and the highest migration rate in the civilized world; 64 per cent of the population is single, 6 per cent widowed, and only 30 per cent married.

Reflecting on this distressing situation, Sean O'Faolain gripes: "Why, ye young divils, why in the name of God and nature, won't ye marry one another?"

Their Loss, Our Gain

It ill becomes us on this side to cast aspersions on the Irish for their celibacy, when so large a percentage of our marriages end in divorce. Rather, we should applaud them for being so cagey.

So long as it is true that "it's an ill wind that blows nobody good," we have the consolation of believing that what is one nation's loss is another's gain.

And so we welcome the Celtic pioneers to our "land of the free and home of the brave" where their brawny men may wield shillelaghs on the metropolitan police force; and their women, as long as they remain single, may be teachers, telling mothers how to bring up their children.

Or, if they perchance find their proper affinities, they may become the maternal progenitors of some of our most prominent politicians.

Mark Twain once said, "They told me I had a future before me. Up till then I had thought it was behind me."

You can buy a T-shirt now, branded with "Here comes Tommy" in front and "There goes Tommy" in the back. Coming or going, if Tommy travels the right road he will "go places," for he is beset "behind and before" by One who is from Everlasting to Everlasting, and who knows the Way. (Read Psalms 139:1-6).

NEW YORK (INS) — The Friars will give their annual benefit dinner at the Waldorf Sunday evening, this time in honor of George Jessel. We stress the "in honor of." George doesn't need a benefit. All proceeds in this one will go to the heart fund and the Friars sick and relief fund.

The talent is, let us say, somewhat unusual. Jack Benny will be toastmaster, and the speakers or singers or both will include Fred Allen, Milton Berle, Eddie Cantor, Tony Martin, Danny Kaye, Helen Hayes, Oscar Hammerstein, Mayor Wagner, Eric Johnston, Gen. David Sarnoff, and a man who might very well be president one of these days, Democratic Sen. Stuart Symington of Mo.

Jessel has done so much for charity through his incredible 45 years on Broadway that it's high time he was made to be the guest of honor; in fact it is high time he was forced to listen to some other toastmaster except himself. Conservatively, three generations of potentially great toastmasters were reared in this land, grew gray and hoarse, and conked off — waiting to get "on." George, the master, prevailed.

Toastmastering is an art often obscenely debased through this land. It calls for something more than a memory for the names of those to be introduced. The toastmaster has entrusted to his hands, often unwisely, power over the life and death of a banquet. And, banquets becoming what they are, and what they cost, and what they involve, that means life and death over a considerable business enterprise.

Jessel has breathed life into scores and scores of banquets which otherwise might have died before the waiters came in bouncing the first bit of rubber chicken. He works hard. The easy graciousness, the first class wit, the taste and flair that he shared with his good friend Jimmy Walker, had to be self-taught. Eddie Cantor once wrote of him:

"He has had no formal education. As a matter of fact, he left grammar school in the fourth grade. He has picked up his education on trains and in waiting rooms. He has a wonderful choice of words and he knows how to put them together. If he were not a producer, he could be a fine writer. We know he's an actor, and does most of it offstage."

Cantor also wrote, wistfully:

"If you think he's good on the dais before a microphone, catch him at a funeral. Really out of this world. He has a file on many of his close friends and important people in show business. In case of a quick demise, before Georgie has finished saying, "Gee, that's too bad,' he's at his file, getting ready for the eulogy. When he calls these mornings and says: 'Eddie, how do you feel?' I know he has one ear to the telephone and one eye on the file. I've wrecked many a day for the kid by telling him, 'I never felt better in my life.' "

The last time I saw Jessel he was rassling George Zaharias on a TV show. It was better than the bouts they put on at the Garden. At least Jessel was serious. He's always serious about his business, and his business that night was to rassle the 300-pound Zaharias.

When George was a member of the Imperial Trio (the other two children were Walter Winchell and Jack Weiner) the Gerry Society kept the lads off the stage. George led them into the orchestra pit, and retained their $12.50 a week.

The manager canned the Imperial Trio after a bit, but kept Jessel and advertised, "It's worth 5 cents alone to hear little Georgie Jessel." Thirty years later Winchell wrote in his column, "And it still goes."

Jessel has a deeply religious strain in him, and is a serious collector of religious literature. He was raised in a profession which dropped its racial discrimination bars quicker than perhaps any other in this country, and is a true representative of that enlightened field.

Discussing a moving picture contract once with Lena Horne, the great Negro club singer, Jessel noticed it was past dinner time. He invited her to dine with him at a plushy East Side restaurant. But at the door the headwaiter stopped them.

"Who made the reservation for you?" he asked, when Jessel insisted.

"Abraham Lincoln," George replied, brushing the man aside.

Government Aid To Health Plans

The Eisenhower health program, now awaiting action by Congress, is based on a new conception of the part the federal government should play in making better medical care available to more people at lower cost. The Eisenhower plan bears small resemblance to the Truman plan for compulsory health insurance, although designed to bring many of the same results.

The compulsory health insurance proposal remained before Congress for more than 10 years without action. It contemplated establishment of elaborate federal machinery to administer the plan and a special payroll tax to finance it. Cost of the plan was estimated at $9 billion a year. The Eisenhower plan calls for relatively small amounts of federal money, much of which would be returned to the Treasury in later years. For this among other reasons, it is believed to have a considerably better chance of adoption by Congress.

The central feature of the new plan is the President's proposal for "limited federal reinsurance" of special risks of the private and nonprofit health insurance plans already operating in many parts of the country. The purpose would be to encourage the voluntary prepayment plans to offer broader protection to more families, particularly against the costs of illnesses which require prolonged and expensive treatment.

The administration reinsurance bill has not yet been introduced in Congress and there has been no advance explanation of just what it will contain. However, it is expected to follow the general lines of a bill by Chairman Wolverton (R., N. J.) of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee on which extensive hearings have already been held. The Wolverton bill was first offered in 1951 but attracted little attention until the reinsurance principle was put forward by President Eisenhower.

In its present form, the Wolverton bill would set up a Federal Health Reinsurance Corporation, modeled on the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation which guarantees private bank deposits up to $10,000. Group health plans which admitted low-income subscribers at reduced rates, and which offered benefits spelled out in the bill, would be eligible for the reinsurance protection. They would be charged two per cent of their income from subscribers and would be guaranteed up to two-thirds of each claim in excess of $1,000 paid to any subscriber during any period of 12 consecutive months.

President Eisenhower said his reinsurance plan could be launched with capital of $25 million. The Wolverton bill would require purchase by the Treasury of $50 million of reinsurance corporation stock and would establish two reinsurance funds—one to underwrite medical care plans and the other to underwrite hospitalization insurance.

In addition to reinsurance for private health plans, the President recommends more federal aid for construction of various facilities for examination, treatment and convalescent care of the sick—facilities which would be needed to establish new health care plans offering more comprehensive benefits.

The American Medical Association characterized the health program of the Truman administration as "socialized medicine" and conducted a million dollar campaign against it. President Eisenhower said in his State of the Union message that he was "flatly opposed to the socialization of medicine" and believed "the great need for hospital and medical services can best be met by the initiative of private plans." These statements were welcomed by the AMA, but it has not yet taken a position on the reinsurance proposal. The administration is now trying to draft its bill in a form that will command the support of the whole medical profession.

Indians As Citizens

Tired of its long trusteeship over the Indians, the federal government is planning to get rid of it as rapidly as possible consistent with the ability of particular tribes to govern themselves, with the duties and privileges of citizens.

Concurrent Resolution 108 at the last session of Congress made it mandatory on the part of the secretary of the interior to have bills prepared by January 1 of this year for introduction freeing tribes of federal control in nine areas, including New York State.

All are now before congress as administration measures, but the Six Nations of New York may prove obdurate. They have a treaty going back to Washington's day, whereby their sovereignty shall always be observed by annual payments in "cloathing."

But as the annual payment in cloth is only $4,500 and the Indians in New York, numbering 10,600, get only $2,700 worth of it, the rest going to the Osages, who moved to Wisconsin, at prevailing prices they are not getting "cloathing" but less than a yard apiece of gingham, cotton cloth or sheeting.

Despite the shrinkage in amount since the days cotton cloth sold for two cents a yard, the Indians regard this as a token of their sovereignty. If the New York state bill passes, they do not have to accept any changed status, though a lump sum will be offered in compensation.

These Indian bills will be considered for a month by the Joint Committee on Indian Affairs, and before they are reported out there will be much political wrangling. But there will be a beginning toward making citizens, instead of wards of the nation, of those whose ancestors were here centuries before European settlers touched the Atlantic coast.

Occupational Hazards

If you are one of the trustful souls who put their faith in weather forecasts, you do so at your own risk. You cannot sue the Weather Bureau if its prediction goes sour, says the United States Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

The weather man merely interprets the weather; he doesn't guarantee it. His prognostications are based on trends and probabilities. He is as disappointed as anybody when his judgment proves wrong.

He wants to be helpful. He tries to discover whether tomorrow will be suitable for a picnic, a ski party or a drive. But whether he is making a long-range forecast or only scouting the weekend, he is dependent upon natural phenomena whose vagaries are sometimes past finding out.

He does the best he can with what he has to work on. If you don't like his work, you always have an alternative. You can fall back upon the pains in Aunt Sarah's pet corn, or the twinges in Uncle Silas' rheumatic knee.

The Child With Cerebral Palsy

Cerebral palsy leads to impairment of the neuro-muscular system and the victim is unable to control the movements of various muscles throughout the body. In the past, we had little to offer these youngsters but nowadays many are being rehabilitated. Hence we see more and more cerebral palsy sufferers on the street and in stores and offices.

The cause is not known, but in the majority the brain has been damaged to a varying degree by hemorrhage. In some places, bleeding takes place as a result of injury at birth; in others, the Rh factor plays a role. Occasionally the obstetrician is held responsible but statistics show that the incidence of the disorder is just as high in those born under adverse circumstances or with the help of a midwife in an isolated community as it is in the finest hospitals in the land. No one is to blame, and the sooner the family realizes this fact the better. Divorces have been traced to the belief that the condition represents a family trait. Now and then the mother develops a feeling of guilt, thinking she is at fault. For this reason, she overprotects the youngster which in turn alters his personality and emotional development.

The abnormality manifests itself in varying ways. The spastic type is incapacitated by muscular stiffness; if the child tries to move the arms or legs, the tendons contract and prevent normal performance of the intended motion. In consequence, the youngster has difficulty in eating, writing, and walking. When athetosis exists, the affliction is more noticeable because muscular control is impaired, modified, or lost completely. The extremities are in constant motion and flail about in pitiable fashion. Facial grimaces are common. Since the movements cannot be controled, it takes great courage for these boys and girls to venture out of doors. In the ataxic form, balance and the sense of direction are disturbed. When the victim reaches for an object, it is missed by two or three inches, and on bending over, he falls. But when the child is quiet, no one would know about his affliction.

Loss of muscular control does not necessarily mean that the mentality is affected. Studies show that one-half have normal or superior intelligence whereas one-third have an I.Q. below 70 and are uneducable. Many appear unintelligent because their speech, hearing, or sight is defective; 75 per cent have problems along this line. But three-fourths can be taught to speak with expert training.

Every child with cerebral palsy ought to be given the benefit of a thorough medical screening and diagnostic classification to determine how much can be expected from treatment. When this evaluation is made by a good authority, either in his office or at a cerebral palsy clinic, there is no need to go elsewhere for advice.

ASTHMATICS AND VACCINES

This depends upon whether the asthmatic is allergic to egg, with which the flu vaccine is prepared.

You neglected to mention the nature of the congenital lesion. Some defects of this type are so serious the child barely survives birth. Recent success with surgery shows that certain defects are amenable to treatment which in turn changes the outlook from poor to good.

Young Outlines Plans For New York Central; Would Put Woman On Board Of Directors; Republican Margin In Congress Reaches Vanishing Point

WASHINGTON — I talked at length the other day with Robert R. Young, the bouncing little tycoon from Texas who has taken on the second biggest railroad in the U.S.A. and the biggest big-business battle the nation has seen in this century. Among other things, I asked him what he would do if he should lose his stockholders' fight to acquire the New York Central on May 26.

"There will be other May 26ths," Young replied, "and I am only 57 years old. I have eight years left before I reach the New York Central's retirement age of 65. I'm going to keep on fighting."

I had not realized before that Young was only 57. I discovered, as we talked, that he had made a fortune before he got to be 35, retired from business and then went back into business again.

"Retirement was too humdrum," he explained. "I got tired doing nothing."

Born on a Texas cattle ranch which his father managed, he had gone to work during World War I for the Du Ponts, became assistant to John J. Raskob, learned the game of finance from the inside, and became one of the early sparkplugs inside Gerenal Motors.

"Why did you go into the railroad business after you decided to go back to work again?" I asked.

"Because it was the most rundown business in the country," he explained. "You have the greatest opportunity in any business that is backward, and the railroad business has been held back for years. If the automobile business had had the same lack of imagination as the railroad business, it wouldn't be anywhere today either."

Train X

When I asked Mr. Young what he intended to do for the New York Central that hadn't been done before, he replied that one of the chief improvements he would install would be roller bearings.

"Can you imagine an industry with more friction than any other not using roller bearings?" he exclaimed. "Their use on the railroad would save millions of dollars, yet there's been a conspiracy to ban roller bearings."

Young went on to tell about Train X, the model streamliner he had built, patterned after a Spanish train, lighter in construction, lower on the rails and costing one-third less to build than the modern passenger car.

"I built it for use on the Chesapeake and Ohio," he explained, "hoping it would set an example to other roads and that they would follow suit. However, since the C. and O. has to link up with other lines we haven't been able to use it yet, because we can't hook up to their junk.

"One trouble with the railroad business," Young continued, "is refusal to change. The present-day freight car, for instance, got its height from the old plantation wagon drawn by a team of mules that used to load cotton bales into freight cars. Freight cars were built a convenient height for those old plantation wagons and have been kept at that height ever since."

Among various plans Young has for the New York Central is to put a woman on its board of directors, put motion pictures on overnight passenger trains, modernize equipment, and let railroad personnel buy stock in the road so they become its owners as well as its operators.

A serious illness in the House of Representatives, plus the conviction of Congressman Ernest Bramblett of California, has reduced the Republican working majority in the House of Representatives to only one vote.

This leaves the Republicans with a minus-one-vote margin in the Senate, and a plus-one margin in the House.

Actually Congressman Bramblett will continue to hold his seat in Congress during his appeal which will take about 90 days, and which will be strung out as long as possible in order to keep his vote in the House of Representatives.

Meanwhile the last GOP congressman to reduce the margin is Alvin Weichel of Sanducky, Ohio, who has been in Bethesda Naval Hospital suffering from a nervous breakdown. Weichel has had diabetes for some time, and friends say he neglected all care of himself; so that the suffering has caused a mental lapse. Doctors have advised that he will not be able to return to Congress, and there are no plans for his re-election.

Congressman Thor Tollefson of Tacoma, Wash., will take Weichel's place as chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

This will be the third committee whose chairman the Republican leadership will by-pass or plans to by-pass because of incompetence, incapacity, or recalcitrance. The other two are Clare Hoffman of Michigan, chairman of the Government Operations Committee, who has become so crusty and difficult that his committee voted 22 to 1 to by-pass him.

The other is 78-year-old Congressman Dan Reed of New York, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. Reed is still going strong as chairman of his powerful tax-writing committee, but Eisenhower leaders have found Reed so uncooperative that they plan to use the Senate Finance Committee to rewrite his tax bill. There isn't any use arguing with Reed, they figure. So they'll not waste breath until the bill gets over to the Senate.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Wages And Goods

It is not always possible to equate wages absolutely because both the standard and cost of living are important factors in any study. Nevertheless, when the import of goods into the United States is considered, the cost of producing such commodities must be considered in relationship to similar costs in the United States. In this country, wages and taxes are the principal cost of both production and distribution.

According to the American Tariff League, whose statistics are generally reliable, about as reliable as figures can be in this era of propaganda when even governments discolor and distort what they give out, wages currently vary as follows (hourly rate in United States dollars):

United States	$1.78
Canada	1.38
Sweden	.75
Belgium	.48
United Kingdom	.47
France	.46
Germany (West?)	.44
Italy	.37
Japan	.19

These figures must be approximate because of differing exchange values and differing methods of reporting, but they give a fair picture.

The wage gap is enormous and must affect the cost of production and the end price. If to these wage figures were added the cost of taxes, bespoken and hidden, it would be clear that in certain commodities even more efficient production would not close the gap between imported and domestically manufactured commodities. The American-made article will have to leave the market before the onslaught of imports.

Two schools of thought accept this condition as satisfactory:

1. The laissez-faire capitalists who hold that all barriers to trade are worse than the corrections for unsatisfactory conditions. Their view is that if the products of another country can defeat ours in our marketplace, the fault lies with our management, which is not alert enough to beat off competition. There are also those who believe that despite the mechanization of industry to a point approaching the automatic, American management has a superior know-how which can meet competition from abroad. They point to the automobile industry as an example.

2. The internationalists hold to the view that unless we make it possible for our allies and other friendly nations to make money in our dollar market, they will forever be dependent upon our subsidies, which cost us more and produce a condition which does us less good than free commerce. They favor a lower tariff or even free trade.

Against these two arguments is the fact that certain industries in the United States, particularly the electrical equipment industry, are already showing signs of suffering from import competition from low-wage countries. This raises the social problem of unemployment for which in this country, during the past two decades, there seemed to be no solution but war.

The argument as to whether the rise in unemployment represents a recession or a depression is academic. For partisan political purposes, one may argue at great length as to the difference between a recession or a depression, just as 15 years ago, propagandistic economists invented the word reflation to confuse us. Fortunately that word is now forgotten. The point is that when Americans are out of work, they get mad. No matter what such unemployment is called, it raises social issues which can only be met on a political level. Unemployment is the most ugly social disease of our society.

The Randall Report added too little information on this subject to be worthy of notice. It seems to have been wasted effort that may have to be done over again, as accurate data, now unavailable, is essential for reaching correct decisions.

Here And Now

Perspective

Nature has a little gimmick by which days, months and years lose their identity and flow together in one stream of consciousness.

The barriers of past, present and future are swept away, and, with all fences down, one is free to roam his universe without let or hindrance, at will.

Then one can shuttle back and forth in all directions in time and space with equal facility, like a hummingbird sipping the nectar from each flower it lights upon.

Some fragrance, some echo of a lost chord, someone's death, may trigger a chain of reveries or longings that lie deep in the hearts of most of us.

Have you ever listened in on a group of oldsters swapping their cock-and-bull stories? You wondered why some of their adventures did not appear in yesterday's NEWS, they were so thrilling—until you learned that they happened 60-odd years ago and were only being dusted off for the occasion, with no regard for historical perspective.

Time Plays Tricks

Henry Ward Beecher was out walking one day, when his dog saw a woodchuck dart into a hole in the fence. Ever after then when they passed that way, the dog would bark furiously at the hole through which the woodchuck had long since gone elsewhere. Another lack of historical perspective!

Time can play strange tricks on one. Try to imagine in your mind's eye the past and the future. Which can you see?

There is only one possible answer—you can see the past. It is before you. The future which you cannot see is therefore behind you. Right?

That's what the Quechuas of Bolivia, South America, say. They "have something." Our interpretation of past and future is based on movement. Theirs is based on perspective. One is as valid as the other.

It is said that in heaven the oldest angels are the youngest. Here, young or old, the angels either marry or remain single. In either case you may ask their age (sic).

It has been said that foresight is better than hindsight. The reverse is also true. It's a formule that won't kick both ways.

A panhandler asks you for the loan of a ten-spot which he promises to repay as soon as convenient. "Remember," said he, that "a thousand years are as but a single day with God."

You blandly reply, "Because you know your Bible so well I'll lend you the $10 dollars—in a minute." You may be "near."

Two people may live in the same neighborhood, and be as far apart as the poles.

Which Is Right?

Or, "two souls with but a single thought, two hearts that beat as one" may be seas apart.

If you are driving, which is the right side of the road? It depends on which direction you are going. You don't mind giving a woman driver one-half of the road, if you know which half she wants.

It's a long way to Tipperary, but if your heart is right there, distances are obliterated. It has been that way since "Adam delved and Eve spun."

The philoprogenitive instinct knows no bounds of race or clime.

The population of Ireland is not populating as it should. The marital situation is not hopeful, not because of any aversion to the connubial state, but because the dance rather than the joys and blessedness of marriage, have been majored upon.

Statistically, Ireland has the lowest marriage rate and the highest migration rate in the civilized world; 64 per cent of the population is single, 6 per cent widowed, and only 30 per cent married.

Reflecting on this distressing situation, Sean O'Faolain gripes: "Why, ye young divils, why in the name of God and nature, won't ye marry one another?"

Their Loss, Our Gain

It ill becomes us on this side to cast aspersions on the Irish for their celibacy, when so large a percentage of our marriages end in divorce. Rather, we should applaud them for being so cagey.

So long as it is true that "it's an ill wind that blows nobody good," we have the consolation of believing that what is one nation's loss is another's gain.

And so we welcome the Celtic pioneers to our "land of the free and home of the brave" where their brawny men may wield shillelaghs on the metropolitan police force; and their women, as long as they remain single, may be teachers, telling mothers how to bring up their children.

Or, if they perchance find their proper affinities, they may become the maternal progenitors of some of our most prominent politicians.

Mark Twain once said, "They told me I had a future before me. Up till then I had thought it was behind me."

You can buy a T-shirt now, branded with "Here comes Tommy" in front and "There goes Tommy" in the back. Coming or going, if Tommy travels the right road he will "go places," for he is beset "behind and before" by One who is from Everlasting to Everlasting, and who knows the Way. (Read Psalms 139:1-6).

NEW YORK (INS) — The Friars will give their annual benefit dinner at the Waldorf Sunday evening, this time in honor of George Jessel. We stress the "in honor of." George doesn't need a benefit. All proceeds in this one will go to the heart fund and the Friars sick and relief fund.

When George was a member of the Imperial Trio (the other two children were Walter Winchell and Jack Weiner) the Gerry Society kept the lads off the stage. George led them into the orchestra pit, and retained their $12.50 a week.

The manager canned the Imperial Trio after a bit, but kept Jessel and advertised, "It's worth 5 cents alone to hear little Georgie Jessel." Thirty years later Winchell wrote in his column, "And it still goes."

Jessel has a deeply religious strain in him, and is a serious collector of religious literature. He was raised in a profession which dropped its racial discrimination bars quicker than perhaps any other in this country, and is a true representative of that enlightened field.

Discussing a moving picture contract once with Lena Horne, the great Negro club singer, Jessel noticed it was past dinner time. He invited her to dine with him at a plushy East Side restaurant. But at the door the headwaiter stopped them.

"Who made the reservation for you?" he asked, when Jessel insisted.

"Abraham Lincoln," George replied, brushing the man aside.

Dulling The Talking Point

Being a couchless psychiatrist we have been figuring why Senator Bricker is so determined to throw a loop on the White House.

John himself had altitudinous ambition to send his laundry out from the Casa Blanca.

He didn't make it but it was closer than lint to blue serge.

Like many another efficient governor Jack was out-feenagled by political deals. They let him pull the badger.

The same thing happened to Governor Dewey, Governor Warren and others too numerous to be accidental.

Is it possible that lurking in the subconsciousness of his political ego is the feeling he was backroomed out of the front parlor?

Iran Is Discussed By AAUW

The International Relations Group of the AAUW discussed Iran at the dinner meeting Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Alice Nevy Maguire, Gephart Drive.

Mrs. William H. Blake, reviewing the book, "My Heart Is Persia," written by a native Iranian girl of 25, Najmek Najafi, helped by Helen Hinckley, American author, said the book was written while Najmek was a student at the University of California. She pointed out that Najmek is the daughter of a distinguished Persian family. Her father was a diplomat and advisor to more than one Shah and her maternal grandfather was ambassador to Russia in the days of the Czar. She prefers the name of Persia to Iran as Persia was the ancient name.

The speaker explained Najmeh was brought up in culture and means and from "the age of 7 she felt pity for the poor and later determined to do something for them." She said in most villages the families lived in one-room adobe houses with a door but no windows or furniture, eating, sleeping and sitting on the floor. Each family has one cooking vessel and most are half-starved, but clean, for cleanliness is stressed in the Moslem religion.

In a family of 10, five or six die of starvation the author said, and declared that communism has no hold in the country, but through hunger it could.

After seeing a United States movie in Teheran showing a factory turning out blue jeans and women's dresses unlike anything in Persia, Najmek determined to see America. After a course at Columbia University she crossed the country by bus to California, to learn as much as possible about the country, in order to help her people.

Writing of Persia's transition from an ancient to a modern country in 25 years, Najmek remembers the first time her sister appeared without a veil, and calls the Trans-Iranian Rail Road the greatest railroad in the world. Taking the place of camels and horses, it is 850 miles long with 250 tunnels, through some mountains 9,500 feet high and has 4,000 bridges.

All members participated in the talk on Iran which followed the review.

Mrs. Arlene Russell was cohostess. Others present were Mrs. A. L. Rogers, Miss Margaret Baker, Mrs William Harrison, Miss Annie B. Gray, Miss Adele Malcolm and Miss Janet Anderson, chairman.

21 Students Finish Driver Training Course

Petersburg High Encourages Safety

PETERSBURG — Twenty-one members of the Petersburg High School Driver's Education Training class recently passed the West Virginia Department of Public Safety's test for drivers license to operate motor vehicles in the state. This group is only part of the class of students who are taking the course this year at Petersburg.

"Driver Education is fast becoming one of the most popular classes in Petersburg High School," remarked Lloyd Snyder, who has served as instructor for 196 students since he began teaching the subject in 1948. The class was included in the curriculum in 1947 as a one semester course.

A total of 44 pupils are enrolled in the class for the entire year. The students receiving the instruction the second semester will be given examinations by the state officials near the end of the semester.

Driver training is a nationwide course taught in the schools to help make the highways a safer place to travel in the years ahead. This program, which is sponsored by the American Automobile Association, attempts to promote safe and sensible driving plus a better coordination between automobile maunfacturers and schools.

All driver training cars are constructed with dual controls to permit the instructor to correct any mistakes the neophyte driver might make while receiving behind the wheel training. During the years that the course has been given in Petersburg, there hasn't been a single accident.

Local automobile agencies have loaned these specially equipped cars to the schools for use in the course. The classes have used Chevrolets, Fords, Plymouths and Pontiacs.

To successfully complete the course, the student receives 36 hours of class room instruction and 6 hours of behind the wheel driving. Classroom instruction includes the use of a prepared textbook, teacher made tests, and tests prepared by the AAA.

Barking Dog Helped Find Lost Child

A three-year-old boy who wandered aimlessly through the woods and swamps of Garrett county for four hours Tuesday was found by searchers when his mongrel dog attracted them by barking.

The boy, Glenn David Skipper, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Andrew Skipper, was lying face down in the mud in an exhausted condition when William Spiker, of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Company, discovered him a mile from his home at Sand Flat.

Mrs. Skipper said the boy wandered off with his dog around 11:15 a. m. while she was hanging up clothes. When he could not be located either at home or at neighbors, Oakland firemen, the Oakland National Guard unit, Trooper Robert Henline, and members of the State Forestry Department started a search.

Spiker said he picked up signs of the boy's tracks shortly after leaving the house and followed a road leading to a swamp and laurel thicket. At one time after he had halted and called, he heard crying. He continued into the brush and finally called the boy's name. Then he heard the dog bark and presently came upon the boy and dog.

Spiker said the child appeared to be exhausted. He had a scratch under his left eye and scratches on his hands but otherwise was unhurt.

Spiker said the boy had crossed two barbed wire fences, and the headwaters of Red Run. He was in a heavy laurel thicket. Later he told his mother he went out "to hunt bunnies and bear." He is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Skipper. His father is a well driller.

21 Students Finish Driver Training Course

Petersburg High Encourages Safety

PETERSBURG — Twenty-one members of the Petersburg High School Driver's Education Training class recently passed the West Virginia Department of Public Safety's test for drivers license to operate motor vehicles in the state. This group is only part of the class of students who are taking the course this year at Petersburg.

"Driver Education is fast becoming one of the most popular classes in Petersburg High School," remarked Lloyd Snyder, who has served as instructor for 196 students since he began teaching the subject in 1948. The class was included in the curriculum in 1947 as a one semester course.

A total of 44 pupils are enrolled in the class for the entire year. The students receiving the instruction the second semester will be given examinations by the state officials near the end of the semester.

Driver training is a nationwide course taught in the schools to help make the highways a safer place to travel in the years ahead. This program, which is sponsored by the American Automobile Association, attempts to promote safe and sensible driving plus a better coordination between automobile maunfacturers and schools.

All driver training cars are constructed with dual controls to permit the instructor to correct any mistakes the neophyte driver might make while receiving behind the wheel training. During the years that the course has been given in Petersburg, there hasn't been a single accident.

Local automobile agencies have loaned these specially equipped cars to the schools for use in the course. The classes have used Chevrolets, Fords, Plymouths and Pontiacs.

To successfully complete the course, the student receives 36 hours of class room instruction and 6 hours of behind the wheel driving. Classroom instruction includes the use of a prepared textbook, teacher made tests, and tests prepared by the AAA.

Barking Dog Helped Find Lost Child

A three-year-old boy who wandered aimlessly through the woods and swamps of Garrett county for four hours Tuesday was found by searchers when his mongrel dog attracted them by barking.

The boy, Glenn David Skipper, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Andrew Skipper, was lying face down in the mud in an exhausted condition when William Spiker, of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Company, discovered him a mile from his home at Sand Flat.

Mrs. Skipper said the boy wandered off with his dog around 11:15 a. m. while she was hanging up clothes. When he could not be located either at home or at neighbors, Oakland firemen, the Oakland National Guard unit, Trooper Robert Henline, and members of the State Forestry Department started a search.

Spiker said he picked up signs of the boy's tracks shortly after leaving the house and followed a road leading to a swamp and laurel thicket. At one time after he had halted and called, he heard crying. He continued into the brush and finally called the boy's name. Then he heard the dog bark and presently came upon the boy and dog.

Spiker said the child appeared to be exhausted. He had a scratch under his left eye and scratches on his hands but otherwise was unhurt.

Spiker said the boy had crossed two barbed wire fences, and the headwaters of Red Run. He was in a heavy laurel thicket. Later he told his mother he went out "to hunt bunnies and bear." He is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Skipper. His father is a well driller.

Keyser Kiwanis Hear Talk On Recreation

John Fox, Potomac State Is Guest

KEYSER — John Fox, Department of Physical Education at Potomac State College, talked to Keyser Kiwanis Club members at the regular club dinner-meeting Wednesday. He selected "recreation" as his subject, describing it as a leisure time activity, an activity in which one gets some enjoyment in the doing.

The speaker indicated the importance of playing—as a leisure time activity, and compared its importance to any given course of study other than vocational subjects.

He stressed the fact that recreation has been too often considered as athletics and that recreational programs in communities often center about active participation in athletics rather than utilizing the entire scope of the field for leisure time activities.

He said that the program of recreation, as he understands it here in Keyser, is a good program for the size of the community and the amount of money community has to put in the program.

The speaker discussed possible enlargement of the program here by including some of the following subjects:

A class in painting, probably in the local high school under direction of some person skilled in that field; a class in wood working in various shops, and various other shop crafts, with all activities for age groups from midgets to oldsters.

As director of recreation in Connecticut, Fox gave examples of some of the activities which recreation programs often find successful, for instance, dog training was conducted. He added that no person thought this would be successful, but it developed into the most successful program the community had at that time.

He stressed that some of these programs for recreation, might be successful only on paper, adding they must be tried out.

He indicated also, that some activities, particularly the crafts, should carry some charge or fee, so that all interested persons will be involved and not just for some who would attend irregularly for a few times out of curiosity and then slide out.

President, A. K. VanScoy, of the Kiwanis club, announced he had received word that the Keyser club has received a rating of first place in the "White" group of clubs in West Virginia and a second place rating in the grouping of all clubs in West Virginia for the past year.

The Circle K Club of Potomac State College was represented by two members as visitors at the club. They were Robert McCune, Clarksburg, and George Wolfe, Cumberland.

Keyser Kiwanis Hear Talk On Recreation

John Fox, Potomac State Is Guest

KEYSER — John Fox, Department of Physical Education at Potomac State College, talked to Keyser Kiwanis Club members at the regular club dinner-meeting Wednesday. He selected "recreation" as his subject, describing it as a leisure time activity, an activity in which one gets some enjoyment in the doing.

The speaker indicated the importance of playing—as a leisure time activity, and compared its importance to any given course of study other than vocational subjects.

He stressed the fact that recreation has been too often considered as athletics and that recreational programs in communities often center about active participation in athletics rather than utilizing the entire scope of the field for leisure time activities.

He said that the program of recreation, as he understands it here in Keyser, is a good program for the size of the community and the amount of money community has to put in the program.

The speaker discussed possible enlargement of the program here by including some of the following subjects:

A class in painting, probably in the local high school under direction of some person skilled in that field; a class in wood working in various shops, and various other shop crafts, with all activities for age groups from midgets to oldsters.

As director of recreation in Connecticut, Fox gave examples of some of the activities which recreation programs often find successful, for instance, dog training was conducted. He added that no person thought this would be successful, but it developed into the most successful program the community had at that time.

He stressed that some of these programs for recreation, might be successful only on paper, adding they must be tried out.

He indicated also, that some activities, particularly the crafts, should carry some charge or fee, so that all interested persons will be involved and not just for some who would attend irregularly for a few times out of curiosity and then slide out.

President, A. K. VanScoy, of the Kiwanis club, announced he had received word that the Keyser club has received a rating of first place in the "White" group of clubs in West Virginia and a second place rating in the grouping of all clubs in West Virginia for the past year.

The Circle K Club of Potomac State College was represented by two members as visitors at the club. They were Robert McCune, Clarksburg, and George Wolfe, Cumberland.

Allegany And Bruce Qualify For District Tournament

BY TED TROXELL

Fort Hill's hot and cold Sentinels experienced one of their hotter evenings last night, and as a result, almost tripped the highly rated Allegany Campers, bowing 56-52, on the Sentinel floor.

As a result of their win, the Campers clinched the WMI and County Class A cage titles, giving them a sweep of the triple crown for the third year in a row, having won the city championship earlier in the year.

Brant Reverses Form

Bob Brant's reversal of form in the second half was chiefly responsible for the Hilltoppers near upset, as the rangy Sentinel pivotman connected for six timely field goals in 14 attempts, after being held to a single goal in the first half.

The two teams left the floor at intermission, with the Campers leading, 31-22. But it became evident as play resumed in the third period, that the fans were not seeing the same Fort Hill quint they had witnessed throughout the first half.

Brant opened the scoring in the second half, hitting on a foul attempt, then with Allegany still leading by nine points, 38-29, the forces of Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh set about to remedy the situation, as Bob Andrews converted a foul, and Jerry Landis, substitute guard who also played an important part in the Fort Hill's second half rally, drove in for a layup, making it 38-33, Allegany.

After Bob Kirtley hit on one of his favorite jump shots, Paul Reitmeier fired in a one hander from the side, and Andrews hit on another foul, to draw the margin to 40-36. This was the closest that Fort Hill was able to come to the Campers, although on several other occasions, they also drew the margin up to four points, trailing by just that margin as the horn sounded at the end of the game.

Reitmeier Fouls Out

Reitmeier was the only player ejected on personal fouls, making his departure with just six seconds remaining in the contest.

The Campers hit on 19 of 54 tries from the floor, for a respectable percentage of .352, while Fort Hill, after shooting very poorly in the first half, drew their mark up to .281—18 field goals in 64 tries.

Brant paced the scorers from both teams, as he connected on seven of 18 goals, and 6-13 at the charity stripe, a total of 20 points.

Jim Hoffman, city scoring leader, and Kirtley paced the West Siders in scoring, each of them grabbing 14 points. Dick Rank, Allegany forward, maintained his terrific average at the foul line, hitting on all of his six tries at the 15-foot mark.

The win was Allegany's 19th in 20 starts, and Fort Hill's 11th loss, against nine wins, marking one of the few times that a Cavanaugh-coached team has fallen below the .500 mark for the season.

It was the eighth straight victory for the 26-year-old ex-marine and his second win in three fights with the powerful but inept Jerseyite.

Johnny Palmer's 127 Leads In Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 19 (AP) — Chubby Johnny Palmer, the Charlotte, N.C., veteran of the tournament trail, took over the show in the $12,500 Texas Open today with a nine-under-par 62 that gave him 127 for 36 holes.

He had a one-stroke lead over Joe Moore Jr., of White Plains, N.Y., who laid down a 66 today to make his total 128 as the field was trimmed to the 60 low professionals and ties and 10 low amateurs for the final 36 holes Saturday and Sunday.

A's Trade Philley

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19 (AP) — The Philadelphia Athletics today traded off hustling, 34-year-old Dave Philley, a switch-hitting outfielder, to the Cleveland Indians for two righthand pitchers, Leroy Wheat and Bill Upton.

The rugged, handsome Philley was having contract trouble with the front office and the A's evidently decided they had sufficient manpower to patrol the outfield to make the deal.

Bulldogs Rout Valley, Marple Sets Records

Bruce Center Gets 44 Points, Cops WMI Title In 90 To 40 Contest

WESTERNPORT, Feb. 19—Dave Marple, Bruce High School center, went on a scoring rampage tonight, registered 44 points, a season's high for the tri-state area and the W.M.I. League, and Coach Augie Eichhorn's Bulldogs walloped Valley High of Lonaconing, 90-40, thereby qualifying for the Maryland District No. 1 Class "B" tournament which opens at Fort Hill High School Friday, March 5.

By ringing up 14 field goals and 14 out of 21 at the foul line, Marple clinched the W.M.I. League's individual scoring championship for the 1954 season with a grand total of 210 points, 25 less than the loop's all-time mark for 235 established last season by Bob Kirk of Barton High School. Marple knocked Jim Hoffman of Allegany out of first place in the scoring race as the Camper forward made 14 points tonight and finished the season with a total of 184 in 10 games.

Marple also hung up a new school record for total points in the W.M.I. League, bettering Don Moran's mark of 160 set in 1949. Dave marked up his 14 field goals in 26 shots and took in a total of 37 rebounds.

Bruce finished the W.M.I. League campaign in second place with an 8-2 record.

The Bulldogs played good defensive ball in limiting the Black Knights to 17 field goals.

BY TED TROXELL

Fort Hill's hot and cold Sentinels experienced one of their hotter evenings last night, and as a result, almost tripped the highly rated Allegany Campers, bowing 56-52, on the Sentinel floor.

As a result of their win, the Campers clinched the WMI and County Class A cage titles, giving them a sweep of the triple crown for the third year in a row, having won the city championship earlier in the year.

Brant Reverses Form

Bob Brant's reversal of form in the second half was chiefly responsible for the Hilltoppers near upset, as the rangy Sentinel pivotman connected for six timely field goals in 14 attempts, after being held to a single goal in the first half.

The two teams left the floor at intermission, with the Campers leading, 31-22. But it became evident as play resumed in the third period, that the fans were not seeing the same Fort Hill quint they had witnessed throughout the first half.

Brant opened the scoring in the second half, hitting on a foul attempt, then with Allegany still leading by nine points, 38-29, the forces of Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh set about to remedy the situation, as Bob Andrews converted a foul, and Jerry Landis, substitute guard who also played an important part in the Fort Hill's second half rally, drove in for a layup, making it 38-33, Allegany.

After Bob Kirtley hit on one of his favorite jump shots, Paul Reitmeier fired in a one hander from the side, and Andrews hit on another foul, to draw the margin to 40-36. This was the closest that Fort Hill was able to come to the Campers, although on several other occasions, they also drew the margin up to four points, trailing by just that margin as the horn sounded at the end of the game.

Reitmeier Fouls Out

Reitmeier was the only player ejected on personal fouls, making his departure with just six seconds remaining in the contest.

The Campers hit on 19 of 54 tries from the floor, for a respectable percentage of .352, while Fort Hill, after shooting very poorly in the first half, drew their mark up to .281—18 field goals in 64 tries.

Brant paced the scorers from both teams, as he connected on seven of 18 goals, and 6-13 at the charity stripe, a total of 20 points.

Jim Hoffman, city scoring leader, and Kirtley paced the West Siders in scoring, each of them grabbing 14 points. Dick Rank, Allegany forward, maintained his terrific average at the foul line, hitting on all of his six tries at the 15-foot mark.

The win was Allegany's 19th in 20 starts, and Fort Hill's 11th loss, against nine wins, marking one of the few times that a Cavanaugh-coached team has fallen below the .500 mark for the season.

Johnny Palmer's 127 Leads In Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 19 (AP) — Chubby Johnny Palmer, the Charlotte, N.C., veteran of the tournament trail, took over the show in the $12,500 Texas Open today with a nine-under-par 62 that gave him 127 for 36 holes.

He had a one-stroke lead over Joe Moore Jr., of White Plains, N.Y., who laid down a 66 today to make his total 128 as the field was trimmed to the 60 low professionals and ties and 10 low amateurs for the final 36 holes Saturday and Sunday.

A's Trade Philley

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19 (AP) — The Philadelphia Athletics today traded off hustling, 34-year-old Dave Philley, a switch-hitting outfielder, to the Cleveland Indians for two righthand pitchers, Leroy Wheat and Bill Upton.

The rugged, handsome Philley was having contract trouble with the front office and the A's evidently decided they had sufficient manpower to patrol the outfield to make the deal.

Race Betting Tax Idea Is Discarded

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 19 (AP) — An idea of raising the tax on Maryland horse race betting was discarded today by the House Ways and Means Committee.

A subcommittee decided that "an increased take of five per cent at this time would do irreparable harm to racing in Maryland."

The subcommittee was convinced by the Racing Commission, track owners and horsemen that a suggested hike from 10 to 15 per cent would be harmful.

Race Betting Tax Idea Is Discarded

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 19 (AP) — An idea of raising the tax on Maryland horse race betting was discarded today by the House Ways and Means Committee.

A subcommittee decided that "an increased take of five per cent at this time would do irreparable harm to racing in Maryland."

The subcommittee was convinced by the Racing Commission, track owners and horsemen that a suggested hike from 10 to 15 per cent would be harmful.

Daily Bridge Lesson — by Barclay

TRY IS WORTH MAKING

CERTAIN efforts to steal tricks are such that, if they don't work, they will cost you a trick or so. Others involve no risk at all. They merely benefit you if the opponents succumb to your lure, but otherwise give you the same result as if you had not made the venture. In a case like that, the try is well worth making, even though the hope for its success is slight. Failure to seek the slightly possible gain comes under the heading of pure laziness, or lack of ambition.

We hope that partners will not make a practice of showing such unbounded confidence as North did when he found good enough reasons for that diamond overcall. He explained later that, with his heart singleton, he had enough strength for a mere spade preference if the rebid was some other suit or No Trumps, and anyway he would not have bid like that against an extra strong pair, nor with an inexperienced player as his partner.

After silently thanking him for the undeserved compliment, upon seeing the club 4 lead and that dummy, we noted two apparent losers in each red suit, with only a bare chance to prevent one of them. Seeking that, we took East's club K with the A and led the diamond 9, hoping that the winner of it would return a trump to prevent heart ruffs. That's just what West did after using his diamond K. The spade A won his 9. The diamond 5 was led next, the A winning and—glory be—West returning a second trump, which the K took. Now the spade 4 to the 10 made possible a run of diamonds to discard all four hearts from the closed hand, leaving only winners and assuring game, plus an extra trick.

Daily Bridge Lesson — by Barclay

TRY IS WORTH MAKING

CERTAIN efforts to steal tricks are such that, if they don't work, they will cost you a trick or so. Others involve no risk at all. They merely benefit you if the opponents succumb to your lure, but otherwise give you the same result as if you had not made the venture. In a case like that, the try is well worth making, even though the hope for its success is slight. Failure to seek the slightly possible gain comes under the heading of pure laziness, or lack of ambition.

Railing Problem Is Aired

Plans to install a brass railing in the center of the front steps at the Court House were discussed by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday.

An estimate of $485 for the railing was received and final action will be taken at a meeting Tuesday morning. The railing is needed, the commissioners say, because some people have found difficulty in using the steps.

William Thomas, president of Local 2835, United Mine Workers of America, Lonaconing, and Patrick Nolan, a member of the local, met with the board to discuss the distribution of surplus food in the county in the near future.

Both men said that the curtailment of part of the UMW pension payments for retired miners which becomes effective at the end of March makes the situation of some families desperate. Thomas and Nolan said their organization will assist the county in any way possible in the surplus food program.

A letter was received from nine residents of Maple Street in Bowling Green asking that their street be oiled and chipped in the spring program of the County Roads Department.

The letter stated that the property owners on one side of the street have installed concrete curbing at their own expense. The letter was referred to J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor. There is the question of whether the street is part of the county roads system.

A resolution was also passed today requesting that a stamp be issued by the U. S. Post Office Department next year in recognition of the 200th anniversary of Fort Cumberland here.

The resolution will be sent to President Eisenhower, the speaker of the Senate and House and all of Maryland representatives in Congress.

Charles W. Ehrbar Retires

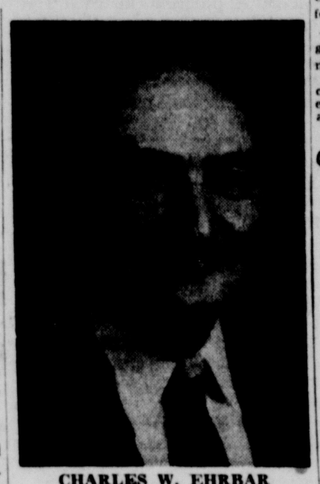

Charles W. Ehrbar, 240 Columbia Street, has retired from employment with the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company after 48 years of service.

Ehrbar, according to William Keller, Cumberland plant wire chief, was a cable splicer for 43 years before he retired the first of the year.

He joined the phone company January, 1906, as an installer-repairman and in the early part of his career he spent much time away from Cumberland working in Keyser, Clarksburg, and Martinsburg and Winchester.

In 1910, to make his rounds as a troubleshooter, he was given the first motorcycle to be used by the phone company in Cumberland.

Ehrbar was born in Okonoko, W. Va., in 1888 and his family moved to Cumberland shortly after that.

Caution Cruisers Hear Trooper Bosley

The reaction and braking chart and ten safety rules on the highways cards were distributed to all members of the Caution Cruisers club.

A quiz on the operation of an automobile and rules of the road was held. The club continued plans for activities with a movie program arranged for February 23, at 2 p. m. in the auditorium.

Child Is Injured

A five-year-old youngster, Michael Twigg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Twigg, Bedford Road, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital yesterday morning when he complained of a headache after he had fallen against a wire fence while playing at his home.

Four out of every 10 Americans have brown eyes, one-third have blue and the rest hazel, gray, green or black.

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

State's Attorney Post Sought By Smith

J. Hodge Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Hodge Smith, Braddock Road, has filed for the Republican nomination for state's attorney of Montgomery County. He has been assistant state's attorney since 1951.

From 1949 to 1951 he was assistant county attorney and previous to that he worked for two years with the General Assembly's department of legislative reference. He was in Army intelligence in World War II.

A native of Cumberland, he was admitted to the Maryland bar in 1939. A Rockville resident, he is married and has three children.

Railing Problem Is Aired

Plans to install a brass railing in the center of the front steps at the Court House were discussed by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday.

An estimate of $485 for the railing was received and final action will be taken at a meeting Tuesday morning. The railing is needed, the commissioners say, because some people have found difficulty in using the steps.

William Thomas, president of Local 2835, United Mine Workers of America, Lonaconing, and Patrick Nolan, a member of the local, met with the board to discuss the distribution of surplus food in the county in the near future.

Both men said that the curtailment of part of the UMW pension payments for retired miners which becomes effective at the end of March makes the situation of some families desperate. Thomas and Nolan said their organization will assist the county in any way possible in the surplus food program.

A letter was received from nine residents of Maple Street in Bowling Green asking that their street be oiled and chipped in the spring program of the County Roads Department.

The letter stated that the property owners on one side of the street have installed concrete curbing at their own expense. The letter was referred to J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor. There is the question of whether the street is part of the county roads system.

A resolution was also passed today requesting that a stamp be issued by the U. S. Post Office Department next year in recognition of the 200th anniversary of Fort Cumberland here.

The resolution will be sent to President Eisenhower, the speaker of the Senate and House and all of Maryland representatives in Congress.

Charles W. Ehrbar Retires

Charles W. Ehrbar, 240 Columbia Street, has retired from employment with the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company after 48 years of service.

Ehrbar, according to William Keller, Cumberland plant wire chief, was a cable splicer for 43 years before he retired the first of the year.

He joined the phone company January, 1906, as an installer-repairman and in the early part of his career he spent much time away from Cumberland working in Keyser, Clarksburg, and Martinsburg and Winchester.

In 1910, to make his rounds as a troubleshooter, he was given the first motorcycle to be used by the phone company in Cumberland.

Ehrbar was born in Okonoko, W. Va., in 1888 and his family moved to Cumberland shortly after that.

'Dead' Boy Revived By Heart Massage

WALTER BROWN JR.

Walter T. Brown Fights For Life At Hospital

A six-year-old boy whose heart stopped beating for five minutes during a tonsillectomy Wednesday and was massaged back to circulation by a local surgeon, is fighting for his life at Sacred Heart Hospital.

The child, Walter "Tommy" Brown Jr., son of Pvt. and Mrs. Walter Thomas Brown Sr., of Benjamin Banneker Apartments, was having his tonsils removed when his heart ceased beating. Although he is still unconscious his condition is slightly improved.

The surgeon, who was in a nearby room assisting in a hernia operation, learned the boy was "dead." Within seconds he made an incision in the child's chest near the area of the heart and for about a minute massaged the boy's heart until he again began breathing.

Rare Phenomenon

Only one of the tonsils had been removed when the heart ceased to function.

The doctor who asked not to be named, said a similar case occurs about once in 10,000 operations. It is caused by an unusual reflex which may occur during an operation.

The surgeon however, said it was the first time he ever had performed such an operation.

The boy, who is to enter Carver School next September, was in good spirits when he went to the hospital. His parents had been advised to have the child's tonsils removed and he was admitted to the hospital on Wednesday.

The American Red Cross has been asked to contact the Walter's father who is now on the West Coast awaiting to be sent to the Far East with the Army. The boy's mother and close relatives have been keeping a 24-hour vigil at the bedside of the child.

Visit From Governor

One surprise the child would have had yesterday afternoon, had he been conscious, was a visit from Governor Theodore R. McKeldin, who had dropped in at Sacred Heart Hospital. An uncle of the boy, Robert Frisby, of Eckhart, was in the hospital room at the time, and shook hands with the Governor, who expressed his sorrow and said he hoped the little boy would recover.

The father, a veteran of World War II, and of the Korean conflict, was home on leave last month just before going to Seattle for duty in the Far East. Before going into the service he had been employed by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

The Brown family also have two younger daughters, Sheila Elaine, and Noreen.

Armed Forces Day Observance Slated May 15

Major Hoover Named City Project Officer

Major Grant E. Hoover, unit advisor for the local units of the U. S. Army Reserve, has been named project officer for this year's Armed Forces Day observance in Cumberland.

Hoover said the annual celebration has been set for Saturday, May 15, and Cumberland again has been selected as one of the key cities for the Armed Forces Day event.

Plans for the local observance are already under way. Major Hoover has written a letter to Mayor Roy W. Eves in connection with selecting a committee chairman and organizing a civilian-military committee.

World-Wide Observance

Hoover pointed out that the civilian members of the group will be able to obtain continuity of effort and do most of the planning for the event, while military members will act as liaison with the Armed Services in securing military assistance.

Col. L. J. Mulhall, artillery, Fort George G. Meade, will be over-all project officer for Area V, of which Cumberland is a part. Col. Mulhall will forward instructions and information to Hoover in planning the local celebration.

According to Hoover, Armed Forces Day will be observed this year throughout the country and at military installations overseas. Nationally it is planned to have parades, luncheons, dinners, balls, mass meetings, and other special events. Also in key cities civilian and military speakers will address local groups.

Endorsement Received

Endorsement has been received from leading national organizations, Hoover said, including veterans, civic, women's, labor and religious groups. Their assistance locally will do much toward bringing the message of Armed Forces Day to local people, Hoover added.

Lt. Commander W. E. Woodson Jr., inspector-instructor, USN and USMCR Training Center, McKaig's Hill, was project officer for the event last year. The 1953 committee chairman was Thomas F. Conlon, local postmaster.

Truck Owner Gets Verdict In Crash Case

Stanley William Stewart, Burlington, W. Va., for his own use and the use of Motors Insurance Corporation, yesterday was awarded a $278.76 jury verdict in Allegany County Circuit Court from Mrs. Irene Clara Galford, 35 Offutt Street.

Stewart, through Attorney William R. Carscaden, originally sued Mrs. Galford and her husband, Harry Galford, Trenton, N. J., for $500. The suit grew out of a collision last July 3 in the 600-block Greene Street between Stewart's truck and an automobile driven by Mrs. Galford. The Galfords subsequently filed a $1,000 cross-claim.

During yesterday's trial Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris, who presided, granted a motion by Attorney William L. Wilson to dismiss the suit insofar as Harry Galford was concerned. It was not established that Mrs. Galford was acting as his agent at the time of the crash.

The jury ruled after hearing the evidence that Mrs. Galford was guilty of contributory negligence but Stewart was not. The jurors set $286.76 as the amount of damages sustained by Stewart's truck. They also decided that the Galford automobile was undamaged but Mrs. Galford's injuries and hospital and medical expenses totaled $420. Because of the ruling on her negligence she was unable to collect any damages.

Burke Named To Board

John G. Burke, 144 Polk Street, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Burke, Shenandoah, Pa., has been appointed to the board of directors of the Maryland Licensed Practical Nurses Association at a recent meeting at Baltimore City General Hospital.

Burke, a graduate of Mahanoy Township High School and a veteran of World War II, received his nurse training at Sacred Heart Hospital School of Nursing and is a member of the nursing staff at the hospital.

He is treasurer of the Holy Name Society of St. Patrick's Church, corresponding secretary of Lurana Veteran Unit, Catholic Students Mission Crusade, and a member of the Manresa Retreat Club.

Compensation Suit Is Filed

A former Cumberland resident now living in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., yesterday filed a $1,000 damage suit in Allegany County Circuit Court against the executors of her former father-in-law's estate.

Mrs. Henrietta Rice, through Attorney William A. Gunter, yesterday sued Earl E. Manges and Thomas N. Berry, executors of the estate of Benjamin W. Rice.

In her declaration, Mrs. Rice states that Benjamin W. Rice died October 15, 1952, and Manges and Berry qualified as executors of the estate in Allegany County Orphans Court December 19, 1952. She charges that she boarded and cared for Benjamin W. Rice and his wife, Florence Rice, for 171 days, from October 7, 1950, until March 24, 1951.

Mrs. Rice said that she did this upon her former father-in-law's promise that she would be paid a fair and reasonable compensation for her services. She figured that $5 a day was fair and just compensation so submitted a claim for $855 in Orphans Court. She concludes that she has received no money although the real estate has been sold and has been told by the executors that her claim has been rejected.

Fight Promised On Plan To Move Election Date

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman of the Allegany County Delegation, reported last night he will try to stop action on a bill which would change the dates of the state primary election this year.

The bill, which has been referred to the Judiciary Committee, would advance the state primary election to the second Monday in June, instead of the fourth, to avoid conflicts with conventions planned in Baltimore.

Delegate See has informed sponsors of the bill that any change in the present schedule would cause complications in Cumberland, since it would mean the state primary would be on June 14, and the city general election the following day.

He said he has received a wire from the Mayor and Council, pointing out the difficulties which would result. Similar information has been forwarded by election officials.

Delegate See also pointed out that it will be impossible for the Allegany County Delegation to meet with the Mayor and Council Monday morning to discuss means of financing improvements to the Lake Gordon filtration plant.

He said he has informed City Attorney Thomas B. Finan it would be impossible for the full delegation to be present, since those home for the weekend will have to leave early to return to Annapolis for a session at 2 p. m.

All Co. Voters' Registration Cards Mailed

38,943 Distributed Since September

After more than five month's work, registrars of the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors have completed the job of addressing and mailing out 38,943 identification cards to voters in all 90 of the county's precincts.

Irvin J. Neat and C. William McDermott, the registrars, began sending out the cards last September 11 and finished yesterday. The last cards went to Election Districts 29-2, K-Z, LaVale; 31, McCoole; 33, Kifer; 34, Bedford Road, and 35, Baltimore Avenue.

Some 549 cards have been returned by voters whose addresses have changed since they last registered.

William A. Wilson, chairman of the Board of Election Supervisors, reminded county voters that if they have not already received their cards they are not likely to get them. Either they have moved and their forwarding address is not known or their names have been stricken from the books for failure to vote in the past five years.

To make certain that the board's records are corrected, all voters who failed to get cards are urged to contact the registrars in the Court House basement.

Wilson did note that the cards are a convenience and not a necessity. A voter may cast his ballot without having his card so long as his name is on the poll books.

Voters have until Saturday, May 29, to register in order to vote in the June 28 state-county primary.

Signing of the pact culminated a series of five meetings which began early in January.

It was the first contract in years which has been agreed upon and signed prior to the expiration date, which would have been February 28.

Union officials said the only change over last week's pact was in working conditions.

The pact was signed by Guy M. Davis, owner, for the company, and James Morrison, president; Burr Powell, vice president, and Grim, for the union.

Flying Saucers West Of City Are Air Force Jets

Those "flying saucers" that many residents saw invading the United States west of Cumberland about 6 o'clock last evening were really U. S. Air Force jet airplanes heading south to roost at an air base.

This information was confirmed last night by reports from an Allegany County Ground Observer Corps post on Bedford Road. There were five of them, and the reason they seemed to be flying so slowly was that they were so far away from the city.

Time of day also had something to add to the weird effects. Reflection from a setting sun in yonder mountains made the long, white vapor trails of the jets appear bright, as if they were glowing.

U. S. Surveyors Begin Mapping For Parkway

Aerial Photographing Will Start March 1

U. S. Department of Interior surveyors and engineers this week began preliminary mapping work along the C & O Canal near Cumberland in the first stage preparatory to construction of the C & O Parkway.

The federal workers yesterday were placing bench marks along the canal right-of-way in the North Branch area. An informed source said last night the markings were preliminary work for aerial photographing and mapping of the Parkway right-of-way, slated to begin March 1.

Aerial Mapping Set

The source said an aerial map photographing outfit will take pictures of the canal and immediate area between Cumberland and Hancock. However, map photos of the entire Parkway project are scheduled to be taken.

The bench marks, recorded on the photos, will provide a basis of measurement for the mapping work.

The State of Maryland has agreed to purchase the right-of-way land needed for the Parkway, but buying of land depends upon measurements and maps to be provided by the federal agency. The aerial maps being prepared by the Department of Interior will be turned over to the state, the source added.

Authorities said the Parkway right-of-way will be an average of 500 feet wide, with land not owned by the federal government being purchased by Maryland.

500 Feet Wide

At spots where the Parkway would run through valuable farm land, ravines or near cliffs, the highway right-of-way would be narrower, while at other places where springs or ponds would provide construction of picturesque parks and stopping places, the right-of-way would be much wider than 500 feet.

The bench mark method of aerial mapping reduces costs of the mapping project. Authorities estimated it costs about one-tenth as much as field-work mapping. However, even the aerial process requires some ground work.

Local officials added that the process was used several years ago for making maps of Cumberland in which markings were placed at city boundaries before aerial photographing.

The first five miles of the Parkway's construction, beginning at Cumberland, has already been approved by the Department of Interior, but funds for the project are still pending further approval by Congress.

James, 25. He was treated for knee injuries. A 2½-year-old son, Ricky, escaped injury. James' wife had lacerations of the head and knee injuries. His mother sustained fractured ribs and lacerations of the head.

Finds Weather Instrument

Kenneth M. Stone, a soil scientist with the U. S. Soil Conservation Service here, is shown looking at the radiosonde, a weather measuring instrument, which he discovered in a red oak tree while doing some soil checking in the area east of Oldtown where Town Creek runs into the Potomac River. He is holding in his left hand an orange-colored parachute from which the radiosonde was dangling. In the foreground is the remnants of a balloon to which both the parachute and radiosonde were attached which burst when it reached a height of 16 miles. When released from the Greater Pittsburgh (Pa.) Airport January 18, this device was attached to the balloon. While in the air the battery-controlled instrument operated as a radio transmitter of temperature, pressure and moisture of air through which it passed. Following instructions found on the box, Stone will mail the instrument to Joliet, Ill., where the Weather Bureau Radiosonde Reconditioning Center is located.

'Dead' Boy Revived By Heart Massage

WALTER BROWN JR.

Walter T. Brown Fights For Life At Hospital

A six-year-old boy whose heart stopped beating for five minutes during a tonsillectomy Wednesday and was massaged back to circulation by a local surgeon, is fighting for his life at Sacred Heart Hospital.

The child, Walter "Tommy" Brown Jr., son of Pvt. and Mrs. Walter Thomas Brown Sr., of Benjamin Banneker Apartments, was having his tonsils removed when his heart ceased beating. Although he is still unconscious his condition is slightly improved.

The surgeon, who was in a nearby room assisting in a hernia operation, learned the boy was "dead." Within seconds he made an incision in the child's chest near the area of the heart and for about a minute massaged the boy's heart until he again began breathing.

Rare Phenomenon

Only one of the tonsils had been removed when the heart ceased to function.

The doctor who asked not to be named, said a similar case occurs about once in 10,000 operations. It is caused by an unusual reflex which may occur during an operation.

The surgeon however, said it was the first time he ever had performed such an operation.

The boy, who is to enter Carver School next September, was in good spirits when he went to the hospital. His parents had been advised to have the child's tonsils removed and he was admitted to the hospital on Wednesday.

The American Red Cross has been asked to contact the Walter's father who is now on the West Coast awaiting to be sent to the Far East with the Army. The boy's mother and close relatives have been keeping a 24-hour vigil at the bedside of the child.

Visit From Governor

One surprise the child would have had yesterday afternoon, had he been conscious, was a visit from Governor Theodore R. McKeldin, who had dropped in at Sacred Heart Hospital. An uncle of the boy, Robert Frisby, of Eckhart, was in the hospital room at the time, and shook hands with the Governor, who expressed his sorrow and said he hoped the little boy would recover.

The father, a veteran of World War II, and of the Korean conflict, was home on leave last month just before going to Seattle for duty in the Far East. Before going into the service he had been employed by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

The Brown family also have two younger daughters, Sheila Elaine, and Noreen.

Armed Forces Day Observance Slated May 15

Major Hoover Named City Project Officer

Major Grant E. Hoover, unit advisor for the local units of the U. S. Army Reserve, has been named project officer for this year's Armed Forces Day observance in Cumberland.

Hoover said the annual celebration has been set for Saturday, May 15, and Cumberland again has been selected as one of the key cities for the Armed Forces Day event.

Plans for the local observance are already under way. Major Hoover has written a letter to Mayor Roy W. Eves in connection with selecting a committee chairman and organizing a civilian-military committee.

World-Wide Observance

Hoover pointed out that the civilian members of the group will be able to obtain continuity of effort and do most of the planning for the event, while military members will act as liaison with the Armed Services in securing military assistance.

Col. L. J. Mulhall, artillery, Fort George G. Meade, will be over-all project officer for Area V, of which Cumberland is a part. Col. Mulhall will forward instructions and information to Hoover in planning the local celebration.

According to Hoover, Armed Forces Day will be observed this year throughout the country and at military installations overseas. Nationally it is planned to have parades, luncheons, dinners, balls, mass meetings, and other special events. Also in key cities civilian and military speakers will address local groups.

Endorsement Received

Endorsement has been received from leading national organizations, Hoover said, including veterans, civic, women's, labor and religious groups. Their assistance locally will do much toward bringing the message of Armed Forces Day to local people, Hoover added.

Lt. Commander W. E. Woodson Jr., inspector-instructor, USN and USMCR Training Center, McKaig's Hill, was project officer for the event last year. The 1953 committee chairman was Thomas F. Conlon, local postmaster.

Truck Owner Gets Verdict In Crash Case

Stanley William Stewart, Burlington, W. Va., for his own use and the use of Motors Insurance Corporation, yesterday was awarded a $278.76 jury verdict in Allegany County Circuit Court from Mrs. Irene Clara Galford, 35 Offutt Street.

Stewart, through Attorney William R. Carscaden, originally sued Mrs. Galford and her husband, Harry Galford, Trenton, N. J., for $500. The suit grew out of a collision last July 3 in the 600-block Greene Street between Stewart's truck and an automobile driven by Mrs. Galford. The Galfords subsequently filed a $1,000 cross-claim.

During yesterday's trial Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris, who presided, granted a motion by Attorney William L. Wilson to dismiss the suit insofar as Harry Galford was concerned. It was not established that Mrs. Galford was acting as his agent at the time of the crash.

The jury ruled after hearing the evidence that Mrs. Galford was guilty of contributory negligence but Stewart was not. The jurors set $286.76 as the amount of damages sustained by Stewart's truck. They also decided that the Galford automobile was undamaged but Mrs. Galford's injuries and hospital and medical expenses totaled $420. Because of the ruling on her negligence she was unable to collect any damages.

Either they have moved and their forwarding address is not known or their names have been stricken from the books for failure to vote in the past five years.

To make certain that the board's records are corrected, all voters who failed to get cards are urged to contact the registrars in the Court House basement.

Wilson did note that the cards are a convenience and not a necessity. A voter may cast his ballot without having his card so long as his name is on the poll books.

Voters have until Saturday, May 29, to register in order to vote in the June 28 state-county primary.

New Contract Is Signed By Bus Union

Local 1110, Bus Drivers Union (AFL) and the Cumberland Transit Lines yesterday signed a new one-year contract, according to Lawrence L. Grim, union business agent.

The new pact, which becomes effective on March 1, covers some 35 drivers and maintenance men employed by the local bus company.

Signing of the pact culminated a series of five meetings which began early in January.

It was the first contract in years which has been agreed upon and signed prior to the expiration date, which would have been February 28.

Union officials said the only change over last week's pact was in working conditions.

The pact was signed by Guy M. Davis, owner, for the company, and James Morrison, president; Burr Powell, vice president, and Grim, for the union.

ROBERT C. ELRICK

Elrick To Run For Register Of Wills Post

Plans To File Candidacy Today

Robert C. Elrick, 125 North Centre Street, announced last night that he will file his certificate this morning as a Republican candidate for Register of Wills, subject to the June 28 primary election.

This will mark Elrick's first venture in politics. He will oppose A. Charles Stewart of Frostburg, who already has filed for re-election. Elrick will become the 13th candidate to file officially as a candidate with the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors. All are Republicans.

Born and reared in Frostburg, Elrick is 46 years of age. He is a son of the late Clyde D. Elrick and Mrs. Hattie E. Elrick, who still reside in Frostburg. He attended Beall High School in Frostburg.

Elrick is a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church here and of the Luthermen's Bible Class. A member and past master of Potomac Lodge 100, A.F. & A.M., he also is a veteran of World War II.

The candidate for Register of Wills is married to the former Miss Mildred L. Martin of Cumberland. They have lived here since 1934 and recently celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary. They are the parents of three children.

Flying Saucers West Of City Are Air Force Jets

Those "flying saucers" that many residents saw invading the United States west of Cumberland about 6 o'clock last evening were really U. S. Air Force jet airplanes heading south to roost at an air base.

This information was confirmed last night by reports from an Allegany County Ground Observer Corps post on Bedford Road. There were five of them, and the reason they seemed to be flying so slowly was that they were so far away from the city.

Time of day also had something to add to the weird effects. Reflection from a setting sun in yonder mountains made the long, white vapor trails of the jets appear bright, as if they were glowing.

Finds Weather Instrument

Kenneth M. Stone, a soil scientist with the U. S. Soil Conservation Service here, is shown looking at the radiosonde, a weather measuring instrument, which he discovered in a red oak tree while doing some soil checking in the area east of Oldtown where Town Creek runs into the Potomac River. He is holding in his left hand an orange-colored parachute from which the radiosonde was dangling. In the foreground is the remnants of a balloon to which both the parachute and radiosonde were attached which burst when it reached a height of 16 miles. When released from the Greater Pittsburgh (Pa.) Airport January 18, this device was attached to the balloon. While in the air the battery-controlled instrument operated as a radio transmitter of temperature, pressure and moisture of air through which it passed. Following instructions found on the box, Stone will mail the instrument to Joliet, Ill., where the Weather Bureau Radiosonde Reconditioning Center is located.

U. S. Surveyors Begin Mapping For Parkway

Aerial Photographing Will Start March 1

U. S. Department of Interior surveyors and engineers this week began preliminary mapping work along the C & O Canal near Cumberland in the first stage preparatory to construction of the C & O Parkway.

The federal workers yesterday were placing bench marks along the canal right-of-way in the North Branch area. An informed source said last night the markings were preliminary work for aerial photographing and mapping of the Parkway right-of-way, slated to begin March 1.

Aerial Mapping Set

The source said an aerial map photographing outfit will take pictures of the canal and immediate area between Cumberland and Hancock. However, map photos of the entire Parkway project are scheduled to be taken.

The bench marks, recorded on the photos, will provide a basis of measurement for the mapping work.

The State of Maryland has agreed to purchase the right-of-way land needed for the Parkway, but buying of land depends upon measurements and maps to be provided by the federal agency. The aerial maps being prepared by the Department of Interior will be turned over to the state, the source added.

Authorities said the Parkway right-of-way will be an average of 500 feet wide, with land not owned by the federal government being purchased by Maryland.

500 Feet Wide

At spots where the Parkway would run through valuable farm land, ravines or near cliffs, the highway right-of-way would be narrower, while at other places where springs or ponds would provide construction of picturesque parks and stopping places, the right-of-way would be much wider than 500 feet.

The bench mark method of aerial mapping reduces costs of the mapping project. Authorities estimated it costs about one-tenth as much as field-work mapping. However, even the aerial process requires some ground work.

Local officials added that the process was used several years ago for making maps of Cumberland in which markings were placed at city boundaries before aerial photographing.

The first five miles of the Parkway's construction, beginning at Cumberland, has already been approved by the Department of Interior, but funds for the project are still pending further approval by Congress.
